NAZIS CUT NORWAY IN HALF

STOCKHOLM, April 16 (AP)—Rushing on an extra train through a district still held by Norwegians, German troops were reported today to have reached the Storlien Heights three miles from the Swedish border and about 50 miles east of the Norwegian port of Trondheim. (The report, if true, indicates that Germany almost has succeeded in cutting Norway in half at her narrow waist.) Storlien is in Sweden, but the heights extend across the border.

Reports reaching the Stockholm paper Allehanda said the German advance was made possible by the Nazi coup in pushing the train through the Norwegian area. It was said here that the railway employees apparently received false information and thought the German train was a Norwegian troop train. The Germans thus passed the Norwegian fortress at Hegra, which is not of much value in the present conflict because its guns are pointed eastward—toward Sweden.

BRITISH WRECK NAZI AIR BASE IN NORWAY

By CHARLES A. SMITH

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 16—A new night attack by British bombing planes turned the Nazi airport in Stavanger, Norway, into a blazing furnace and damaged the runways so severely that German bombers will be unable to use the field, it was announced officially today.

For nearly an hour, the British bombers rained incendiary and demolition bombs on the airport. Several big Nazi planes were observed burning furiously at one end of the field. Hangars were set ablaze and the whole airport became a red glow.

This announcement was accompanied by reports the British were rushing reinforcements to aid landing parties which yesterday won footholds on the bleak Norwegian coast.

The first expeditionary force will total 100,000 men, according to reliable reports here. Of these many are Canadians.

Chief importance of the new Stavanger raid, and the six which preceded it, was said to lie in the fact that Stavanger was one of the two possible bases for Nazi bombers intending to raid British naval bases.

Heavy bombers of the type that would be used in such attacks require long runways, it was pointed out. And the destruction of those at Stavanger makes that field useless. Huge bomb craters now dot the field.

NO BRITISH LOSSES

British losses in the raid were reported to have been nil. Upon their return, the pilots reported that at least two extensive fires were burning when they dropped the last of their bombs and turned back home.

Meanwhile, British circles anxiously awaited fuller official details regarding the Norwegian landings, particularly whether the French forces have yet arrived to support the British.

It was indicated that all, or a great part of the 100,000 men previously trained for action in Finland, were en route to the Norse front. According to Renter's News Agency, several contingents from Canada are included in the armada speeding to the relief of Norway. Newspaper posters here announced "Canadians Land in Norway."

(According to Associated Press dispatches from London the Press Association, a British agency, said Canadians who have landed in Norway are men who volunteered for the force which was originally intended to go to the assistance of Finland.)

(The Press Association said it was believed that when Germany invaded Norway the expeditionary force for Finland was reconstituted and that its Canadian members were given equipment such as would be used in northern Norway.)

(This volunteer force, it said, had been undergoing intensive training in methods of warfare particularly adaptable to action in mountainous, snow-bound country.)

ALONG NORTH FRONT—Another day of war in Norway finds series of air and land battles taking place, British troops pouring into stricken nation, two German transports, two Allied subs sunk in Skagerrak, and a British plane downed in the North Sea. At Kristiansund (1) 2150 Norwegian soldiers were captured, Oslo (2) still held by Nazis, German raid on Hamar (3), Stavanger (4) bombed by British. At Bergen (5) two British planes were shot down, Norwegian troops engaged Nazis at Kristiansund (6), and at Trondheim (7), Norse battalion fired on train believed carrying Nazis, killing one passenger.

HITLER 'MAD DOG' TO CHAMBERLAIN

By ROBERT G. NIXON

International News Service Staff Correspondent

LONDON, April 16—The British government remains absolutely confident that the "mad dog" of Hitlerism will be destroyed, Prime Minister Chamberlain declared today.

Addressing the National Free Church Council, Chamberlain spoke briefly of Britain's counter-stroke against the German invasion of Norway.

"Since the latest outrage of these monsters of wickedness in Germany who seem to have shut the gates of mercy upon mankind," he said, "all my thoughts have been occupied with how to counter that stroke."

"It is becoming clearer daily that our fight against Nazism is just part of the eternal war between right and wrong."

"Every day that passes gives us some new demonstration of Germany's utter disregard of religion, mercy, truth and justice."

"A short time ago I declared that I felt ten times more confident than at the beginning of the war of ultimate victory. I repeat that confidence now."

"If Germany should triumph, every fortress built by civilization would go down. They will not do down."

"Every act of Germany's makes it even more unmistakably clear that no people, however meek, peaceful or harmless, may be safe until this mad dog has been destroyed."

"Germany has made many miscalculations, but none greater than the invasion of Norway."

"This war will be won by the spiritual forces of the world as much as by the material power of their brave defenders. These spiritual forces have been affirmed by what Germany has done."

"We want your aid (that of the church) to crush the powers of tyranny and wickedness forever."

Chamberlain rush to the House of Commons immediately after his church address.

He announced pending business for the remainder of the week, but made no mention of the possibility of a statement on the war situation as expected.

Parliamentary observers indicated that the situation in Norway was still fluid to permit a general statement at this time.

Third of Nazi Navy Lost, French Say

PARIS, April 16 (AP)—Premier Paul Reynaud told the French Senate today that Germany has lost almost one-third of her navy in the past week of fighting in Scandinavian waters. Specific figures, the premier declared, are, officially, 30 per cent of the Nazi navy, including 20 per cent of Germany's cruisers and 25 per cent of her destroyers.

Reynaud placed the Nazi sea losses at 78,000 tons during the past week when, he said, the allied navies had lost "not a single pound." (He evidently referred to British and French merchant shipping.)

This amount of military and merchant German shipping, the premier declared, has been either sunk, scuttled or captured.

The Senators stood and cheered when Reynaud referred to President Roosevelt's Pan-American speech yesterday.

CHEERS FOR ROOSEVELT

"No one asks whom Roosevelt meant when he said he condemned force," the premier said.

He mentioned President Roosevelt by name and his statement brought prolonged applause from all benches.

"I cannot bring you news that might hinder our operations, which are still going on," Reynaud told the Senate.

But he cited admiralty figures for his report of German naval losses and said that, in addition to the Nazi cruisers and destroyers sunk, 15 per cent of Germany's destroyers also had been damaged and several German submarines sunk.

He recalled to the Senators that seven German destroyers were sunk at Narvik and that the Baltic sea—Germany's backyard—has been mined.

NEW ALLIED FRONT

"As one of the major results of allied operations," Reynaud asserted, "Germany is going to be obliged to fight on a new front."

"Allied troops have been disembarked and have joined Norwegian troops on the front."

The premier maintained that the Scandinavian adventure also has brought Germany a big "moral defeat."

KING HAAKON OF NORWAY

Norway's King Flees to Sweden

NEW YORK, April 16 (INS)—King Haakon of Norway and his government have fled across the border to Sweden according to reports reaching Berlin. It was announced today by NBC's Berlin representative in a transatlantic broadcast.

BULLETIN

GOTHENBURG, Sweden, April 16 (INS)—A total of 10,000 Norwegians, including 5000 troops, have fled in panic across the Swedish border since outbreak of Norwegian hostilities began. It was learned in Gothenburg today.

Noyes, Boston Auto Dealer, Friend Die In Airplane Crash

Harry E. Noyes, 43, millionaire Boston automobile dealer and yachtsman, and an associate, Robert Rideout, 41, of Marblehead, were killed today when their Florida-bound monoplane crashed and burned at Higganum, Ct.

PROBE RED SABOTAGE SHIP PLOT

WASHINGTON, April 16 (INS)—Communist-backed plans to sabotage shipments of goods from this country to the Allies have been discovered by the Dies committee, Chairman Dies (D.) of Texas, disclosed today.

Dies said his un-American activities investigating committee would launch a searching investigation in an effort to forestall destruction of ships and commodities. "Reliable information has come to us of far-reaching plans to prevent any shipments bound for the Allies from leaving these shores," Dies declared. "These plans, we understand, are being carried out under direct orders from Moscow."

He said thus far the volume of goods shipped to England and France since the war began has been small, and so there has been little or no attempt at sabotage.

"But plans are laid so that when shipments get heavy during the next months concerted efforts to stop them will be made all over the country," he added.

Dies pointed out that the Communist party is bitterly opposed to what it terms the Allies' "imperialistic war." For that reason, he said, the party is seeking to strike whatever blows it can against extension of aid to Britain and France.

Meanwhile, the Dies committee planned to resume hearings into Communist activities and press its drive to obtain both Communist and Fascist membership lists.

At the same time, Dies said he was going ahead with his investigation of an asserted Communist-Nazi plot to gain a foothold on this continent by fomenting a revolution in Mexico and setting up a puppet government there.

The chairman warned that these tactics were the same as those used in small European countries which have been forced under Nazi or Communist domination, and called on "every branch of this government" to co-operate in driving out "this enemy from within."

British Cruiser Sunk, Nazis Say

BERLIN, April 16 (AP)—The German high command announced today a British cruiser was attacked and sunk by German bombers yesterday off the Norwegian coast.

The high command said the ship, heavily damaged, listed sharply and later sank.

It also announced that a British amphibian plane had been destroyed.

CONFISCATE PLANES

LONDON, April 16 (AP)—Reuters, British news agency, reported today that seven Norwegian army planes landed in southern Sweden yesterday afternoon. The machines were confiscated and the pilots interned.

BULLETINS

STOCKHOLM, April 16 (INS)—German machine gunners fired on Swedish police guards at the Korsnäs border station, it was reported in Stockholm today.

There were no casualties, and the German officer in charge later expressed his regrets for the incident, it was stated.

LONDON, April 16 (INS)—A German report that eight British submarines have been sunk in recent naval engagements was branded as fantastic by British naval circles today.

BRUSSELS, April 16 (AP)—A French plane fell in flames today, killing one of the crew and injuring two others, after a fight with a German plane near Londer, near the French border.

LONDON, April 16 (INS)—The Swedish government today extended air raid precautionary measures to the whole of Sweden, it was stated in a Reuter dispatch from Stockholm.

BERNE, April 16 (INS)—The Swiss Federal Council today called up a mountain infantry regiment and two territorial battalions, effective April 23.

STOCKHOLM, April 16 (INS)—An air raid alarm was sounded in the Swedish west coast town of Stromstad today, according to a dispatch to the Stockholm paper Aftonbladet.

BOMBAY, April 16 (AP)—The Bombay naval authority today seized the Danish motorship Godrun Maersk, 1344 tons, with her crew of 21.

Another member of the party, Charles Smith, 40, caretaker at the Noyes summer estate at Marblehead, and the pilot, John R. Hartwell, 28, of Tappan st., Brookline, fought their way from the flaming cabin.

Both men, found by a rescue party, were taken to Middlesex Hospital at nearby Middletown, where doctors said they would recover. Both suffered multiple injuries and burns.

Hartwell said he was not sure what caused the plane to fall, but believed it was motor trouble.

He said he could hear the dispatcher from the home field on the ship's two-way radio, but was unable to talk with Boston.

The last thing he remembered until the time he was found, he said, was Smith's dragging him from the fuselage of the flaming plane.

The party left the East Boston airport shortly before midnight in a ship which Noyes had chartered from the Intercity Airlines for a flight to his Florida estate at Palm Beach.

The smoking ruins of the plane were found about two hours after the flaming ship was seen diving towards Cockapennett State Forest, a heavily wooded section.

Albert E. Spencer, a resident in the vicinity, heard the sputtering motor and saw the flames. Setting out to the rescue, he enlisted the aid of the family of Victor Nigrella.

The volunteers found Smith

British Troops Take Dane Isles

LONDON, April 16 (AP)—Prime Minister Chamberlain announced today the House of Commons tomorrow would debate the question of the strategic location of industrial plants in wartime Britain.

Speaking briefly, he made no mention of a possible statement by himself today on the progress of the war.

Earlier a government spokesman told Commons a British expeditionary force had been landed in the Faroe Islands, Danish possession between Scotland and Iceland. The announcement was made by R. A. Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, and showed that Britain had carried out plans for the occupation made known in the House Thursday by Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty.

Butler added that the governor of the Faroe Islands replied on April 10 to a British communication, agreeing to grant such facilities as Britain might require to prevent German forces from establishing themselves there.

Swedes Report New Sea Battle

LONDON, April 16 (AP)—Reuters (British news agency) reports from Goteborg via Stockholm said today: "A considerable naval battle" occurred yesterday north of Skagen and is believed still proceeding in the Skagerrak.

RESCUE—Photo, passed by German censor, shows, according to caption, rescue of three British seamen by Nazi sailors after British destroyer was sunk off the Norwegian coast. Rescued men can be seen clutching ropes alongside Nazi vessel.

HOW OSLO LIVES UNDER NAZI RULE

OSLO, April 15 (AP) Delayed—Since the German occupation there have been only two air alarms in Oslo, both Wednesday forenoon. Following the last alarm the rumor spread that the entire population had to leave the city immediately, as a battle was impending in the harbor.

Panic followed. Thousands remained in the woods all night and many still have not returned home.

Life now is as normal as possible under conditions, with many families removed to districts from which it is at present impossible for them to return because of military operations.

KING'S REFUGE SECRET

New German troops and supplies are arriving daily. German ships are unloading food for the troops. German soldiers are permitted to use reichsmarks at the rate of 1 mark to 1.68 kroner.

King Haakon's whereabouts are known only to a few persons, among them the German minister who has twice made contact with him for a settlement.

The German occupation proceeds quickly and systematically. There is direct railway communication with the Kristiansand district in the south and to Korsnäs at the Swedish border.

MANY TOWNS OCCUPIED

The occupation has been extended to Drammen, Kongsgard, Honefoss, Elidsvoll, Elverum, Asker, Sarpsborg, Fredrikstad, Halden and Korsnäs.

There is no direct censorship for newspapers, except for what the situation and common sense direct. There are no restrictions against listening to radio broadcasts from abroad.

Some motion picture theaters are open. Food and milk are available. Church meetings and services are held as usual. There is a complete blackout in the Oslo district, but there is no restriction on the movements of citizens in the streets.

Men between the ages of 16 and 25 are not allowed to leave Oslo.

2000 Poles Cheer Haller on Hub Visit

A wildly-cheering throng of 2000 persons, many of them dressed in the costume of their native Poland, took over the North Station today to greet Gen. Joseph Haller, 77-year-old, white-mustached, be-decorated minister-at-large of the provisional Polish government.

All plans for a formal greeting to the distinguished officer went into the discard as the crowd rushed forward when he appeared on the car steps, and it was only after half an hour that Louis Brema, official greeter, was able to meet Gen. Haller and offer the respects of Mayor Tobin.

Twenty little girls from St. Mary's parochial schools in South Boston and Cambridge, dressed in brilliant Polish costumes and with garlands of flowers in their flaxen-colored hair, scheduled to present the general with a bouquet of flowers, were almost lost in the shuffle.

WAR VETS' WELCOME

Delegations from many Polish organizations, including Post 53, Lynn, and Post 37, South Boston, American Legion, and the Salem Independent American-Polish Post of the Legion, offered their official good wishes.

Many veterans of the "Blue Army of Haller," including 150 American volunteer veterans that fought for Poland after the armistice, lined the way from the station to the waiting cars.

Mayor Tobin tendered an official breakfast to Gen. Haller at the Hotel Statler, at which the mayor met the minister-at-large and introduced him to Hugh Alexander Ford, British consul in Boston; the Rev. L. A. Sikora, Maj. Michael McLaughlin, representing Governor Saltonstall; Francis Briere, French consul in Boston, and Bronislav A. Jezewski.

WILL MEET GOVERNOR

Gen. Haller has been in this country collecting funds for the provisional "unity" government of Poland.

He is to meet Governor Saltonstall, attend a state luncheon, and visit Polish parochial schools in Greater Boston and the Polish orphans of the Little Flower in Hyde Park today.

Polish veterans will give him a reception tonight, and tomorrow Cardinal O'Connell will receive him at his home.

High point of his visit to Boston will be a reception for him and his speech tomorrow night at the Hotel Bradford, at which thousands are expected to be present.

Son Pleads Guilty To Slaying Mother

CADILLAC, Mich., April 16 (AP)—John Andreen, 24, accused of stabbing his mother fatally during a quarrel over a three-cent difference in a grocery bill, has pleaded guilty to second degree murder. Circuit Judge Fred S. Lamb deferred sentence.

Mrs. John G. Andreen was slain Feb. 24 with a kitchen knife after she objected to her son paying eight cents, instead of five, for a bunch of celery.

TRIAL AIRS PIN BALL CONSPIRACY CHARGE

TAUNTON, April 16—The story of an alleged "muscling in" on a pin ball machine enterprise was unfolded today as the hearing of evidence began in the trial of Joseph L. Millette, a former New Bedford deputy sheriff.

Among witnesses summoned by the prosecution was Mayor Leo E. Carney of New Bedford, himself under indictment on charges of conspiracy to promote a lottery, an indictment not related to the Millette charges.

Millette, who is being tried on 61 counts of larceny before a Bristol County jury, allegedly collected $3.50 a week per pin ball machine and later declared himself in as a partner.

Asst. Dist. Atty. Frank E. Smith, who made the charges, told the opening session that Millette represented himself to Charles Pittle of New Bedford as having elected Mayor Carney to office and being influential in political circles.

Before the trial opened here, Millette pleaded guilty to three indictments in New Bedford, which alleged he conspired to illegally register trucks used by the city on public works and WPA projects.

Indictments against Mayor Carney and Millette resulted from a special session of the grand jury in 1938. Carney, in Jan. 1939, was found not guilty of soliciting a bribe in connection with a garbage contract award. The mayor is scheduled to go to trial soon on this lottery indictment.

45,000 U. S. Troops In Ga. Mock War

FORT BENNING, Ga., April 16 (AP)—Two corps of troops—approximately 45,000 men—were locked in a theoretically desperate struggle today over a nine-mile front on the U. S. Infantry School reservation between the hamlets of Ochilée and Elneck.

Red and blue cards were clustered over a ten-foot wall map in the intelligence office of control headquarters to denote positions of opposing units.

CHILD'S PRATTLE REVEALS BABES BURIED IN CELLAR

BELVIDERE, Ill., April 16 (AP)—Two tiny coffins, crudely fashioned out of concrete, held the attention of Boone County authorities today as they studied the strange story told by Mr. and Mrs. Henry Huber.

The coffins were found on the basement floor of the Huber home. In them, the Hubers told Sheriff Perry C. Bennett, were the bodies of their son and of their grandson, the child of Willard Huber, of Rockford, Ill.

The Hubers, both about 50 years old, told the sheriff that both babies had been born dead, the son 23 years ago, the grandson in 1938.

Coroner Floyd E. Atkins said the couple told him that they had intended to provide regular burial for the babies "sometime," but wanted to have them near until that time.

"We couldn't see that we did anything wrong," they told the coroner.

The coffins were discovered yesterday after investigation of a story told by the Hubers' 11-year-old daughter, Ruth, to playmates.

The couple told the coroner that the coffin containing the body of their son—born in 1917—was buried in the backyard of their former home at Muscatine, Ia., for nine years. They exhumed it, they said, and brought it to Belvidere when they moved here several years ago.

Dr. Atkins reported that an X-ray picture of one coffin showed a nailed wooden box inside the concrete, but that no body was discernible.

The Hubers were not detained, the coroner said, adding that further inquiries would be made before deciding whether to open the coffins or make a formal investigation.

Boston Evening American Photo
BEST ORATOR—Winner of the American Legion's national high school oratorical contest, Thomas Haggerty, Jr., 18, of New York City, receives the congratulations of Homer Chailaux at Faneuil Hall. Prize was $4000 scholarship.

Legion's Prize Makes His Dream a Reality

The dreams of Thomas Haggerty, Jr., Far Rockaway High School senior and son of a New York city fireman, were well on the way to fulfillment today following his victory in the finals of the American Legion Oratorical contest.

For young Haggerty, who wants to be a doctor, was winner of a $4000 college education in a contest in which he has fought his way through 62,000 contestants throughout the nation.

Given but five minutes to prepare a six-minute address, young Haggerty astounded the judges with an eloquent and logical speech on the constitutional provision prohibiting the acceptance of foreign titles by citizens of this country.

He spoke equally as well in this extemporaneous talk as he did earlier in a 12-minute prepared address.

Second prize of $1000 went to Clarence Carlson, Pontiac, Mich.,

representing the mid-west. Third and fourth prizes of $500 each were won by Joseph Minohan, 17, of Casper, Wyo., and Hugh Overby, Jr., 18, of Jacksonville, Fla.

Dr. Albert Bushnell Hart, professor-emeritus of history at Harvard, chairman of the judges, told the audience that never in his career as a teacher had he seen four young men so sure of speech and quick of wit.

The judges, in addition to Prof. Hart, were Walter F. Downey, state commissioner of education; John P. Higgins, chief justice of the superior court; the Rev. Michael J. Aherne, S. J., of Weston College; Joseph R. Wiggins, president of the Massachusetts Bar Association.

Maid Is Trapped By Newspaper Ad

Taking a tip from the slogan, "It Pays to Advertise," Boston police today ended an alleged racket of a so-called "bad girl" of Sherborn Reformatory.

Held on charges of luring Greater Boston homes that employed her as practical nurse and domestic was Ruth Ann Douglas, 23, who, police said, served a five-year term at Sherborn Reformatory.

"I don't know why I did it," police quoted the girl as saying. "I had no use for many of the things I took and didn't try to dispose of them."

Police, who seized her in a Brookline rooming house after inserting a cleverly worded ad in Boston newspapers, said, however, that the girl had a man accomplice, and search was under way for him.

The girl's arrest came after Detectives William Tooner and Fred Williams, specifically assigned to the case for several weeks, were about to give it up. They had the girl's name but could not locate her.

Police, remembering the girl had obtained her positions by answering want ads, worded the ad to make the job appear inviting. Soon they received a number of replies and among them was one from Ruth Douglas, police said.

Stunned as police walked into her room, the girl presently recovered and helped them to identify stolen loot found in her rooms, police said.

Her victims included Mrs. Hugh G. Murphy of Westville st., Dorchester, and a woman doctor in Natick, officers said. Articles recovered included a white sable coat, jewelry and wearing apparel.

At Sherborn, the girl, of studious appearance, swallowed pins and resorted to other desperate means to bring about illness in efforts to escape, police said.

Boston's school committee made educational history today as it shook off the old system of teaching penmanship in public schools. Remember the old push and pull system under which students crawled out circles with muscular movements?

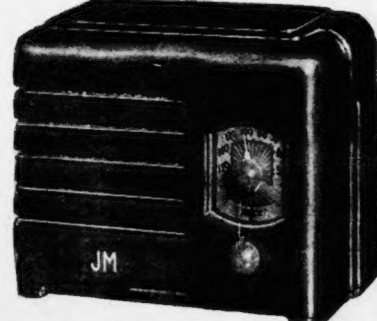

Well, the school committee decided the method has not come up to expectations, and announced that henceforth pupils will be permitted more individuality and may develop their own writing characteristics.

The new objective will be legibility and ease in writing, said the committee as it accepted a report by the board of superintendents for modification in teaching penmanship in grades three to six.

"Police will probably claim I sinned, but the good I have done will outweigh any charges that may be placed."

"I have no regrets, no hard feelings against my enemies. And for myself, I have made my peace with the Creator."

The note was signed, "Cordially yours, Anna L. Bauer."

REMEMBERS 4 KITTENS

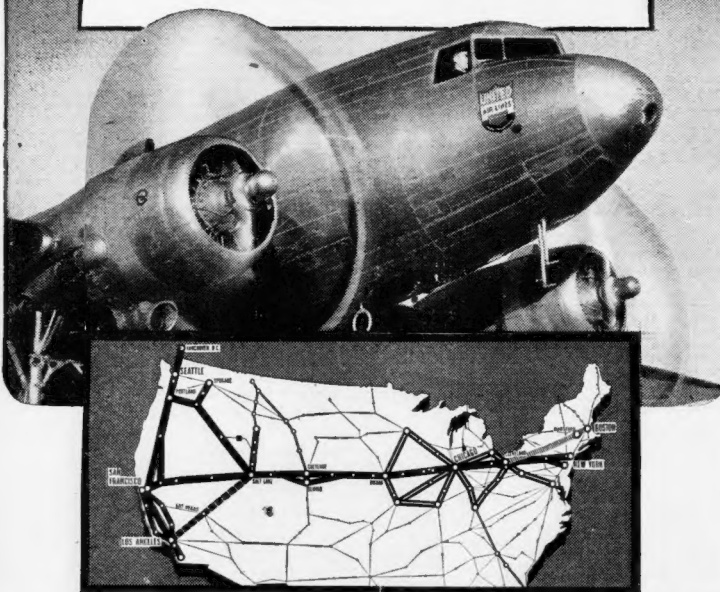

A pathetic postscript said:
"There are four little kittens in the kitchen which should find good homes. There is also the mother cat and a gray cat."

Discovery of Mrs. Bauer's death resulted from her failure to appear in municipal court before Judge Joseph Riley.

She was to face charges of keeping an immoral house and deriving support from two young women recently arrested.

When Mrs. Bauer's name was called in court and she did not answer, her lawyer, Atty. James F. Morelli, told Judge Riley he feared his client might have taken her life.

MAKING THE NATION A NEIGHBOR OF BOSTON

Twenty years ago, when the Government selected the route of the first coast-to-coast air service, it established what is now United Air Lines Main Line Route, linking New York-Cleveland and Chicago with the Pacific Coast.

Years later three additional cross-country airways were established from New York. Boston and New England today, however, must travel via New York for expedited transcontinental service. United Air Lines proposes—subject to approval of the Civil Aeronautics Authority—to give to Boston and New England the advantages of a new direct East-West coast-to-coast service linking Boston with Cleveland, Chicago, California and the Pacific Northwest.

Look at the map. The dotted line shows how this new service, over the natural trade route west, would provide the 8,000,000 people of New England with transcontinental service comparable with that now enjoyed by other large ports of the U. S. A. United's proposed fast transportation supplementing present plane services will, more than ever, make the entire nation Boston's neighbor.

CONFIRMATION—Kneeling at altar, little Ann Elizabeth Newman is confirmed by Bishop Richard J. Cushing . . . receiving the blessing at St. Mary of the Hills Church in Milton.

Alimony Continues If She Weds Again

Whether or not she marries again, Mrs. McCulloch Hind of Beacon st., Back Bay, former socialite belle of Texas who married Harold L. Hind of Commonwealth ave., Brighton, wealthy Boston contractor, will be well provided for during the rest of her life under a most unusual divorce agreement reached today in Suffolk Probate Court.

Granted a decree by Judge Frederick J. Dillon in her uncontested suit, counsel for her husband and her own attorney were named as trustees in an agreement under which Mrs. Hind will receive $200 a month for life, and be free to wed again.

Atty. Alexander Whiteside was counsel for Mrs. Hind and Atty. Walter E. Brownell entered the agreement for Hind.

SAYS HUSBAND JEALOUS

The agreement further stipulated that if Hind's income should exceed $8000 a year, one-third of the excess will go to Mrs. Hind.

Also, if the rent of her present apartment is raised above $65 a month, the husband will pay the increase.

Hearing of the unusual suit based on grounds of cruel and abusive treatment attracted many prominent members of Back Bay society to the court.

"We were married at Waco, Tex., in 1913," Mrs. Hind testified, "and our early domestic life was happy, except that my husband was extremely jealous."

She testified that the first rift came when she visited Gov. Ferguson's daughter, just before Gov. Ferguson became Governor of Texas.

"On that occasion," Mrs. Hind testified, "I was provided with an escort who sent me flowers. This made my husband very angry and we quarreled."

TELLS OF OTHER GIRL

Mrs. Hind then told of living in Brookline during which time she said her husband would go away for week-ends to Maine and Cape Cod for hunting and fishing. She was left alone at home. Questioned by Atty. Whiteside what the real trouble was between them, she replied:

"People told me he had another girl. Later I saw her in the car with him. This caused me much unhappiness."

Again questioned as to whether her husband drank very much, she replied:

"He wasn't a hard drinker.

He'd take a drink once in a while but it made him very ugly."

Tobin in Clash Over Cash Beano Games

Faced with a City Council order which would permit wide-open beano games and $100 cash prizes, Mayor Tobin today was in a dilemma as police complaints of law violations in the present operation of games continued.

The city council would permit $100 cash prizes, although the mayor's own rules at present bar cash prizes and severely curtail the game.

Yet police complaints to both the mayor and City Censor John J. Spencer have not ceased since last February when scores of law violating games were reported.

COMPLAINTS CONTINUE

At that time Capt. Harry T. Grace of the Hyde Park division reported 10 games conducted in absolute violation of the mayor's rules. Spencer suspended the licenses of two of the games for one week.

Today complaints from the Hyde Park division continued. One game was reported to be operating even without a license.

At the time of recent police complaints Police Supt. Fallon said: "Failure to halt this brazenly Illegal beano racket is the fault of the licensing officials, not the police."

The complaints were made to the mayor in writing. The city council order which is now before him for action would abolish his present rules on the conduct of beano games and restore the game to a cash basis.

PASSED AFTER ROW

Following a bitter row in the council the order was passed by a vote of 11 to 5. Charitable organizations, religious, fraternal and patriotic would be allowed to award the high cash prize, thus avoiding the present stringent regulations which were started by former Mayor Frederick W. Mansfield.

Mansfield instituted the regulations to clear the city of beano racketeers who had been conducting games under thinly disguised charitable auspices.

Germans, Belgians In Coal Trade Pact

BRUSSELS, April 16 (AP)—Germany has agreed to increase shipments of coal to Belgium under the terms of a new three-month trade agreement virtually completed today.

Germany is expected to send Belgium 360,000 tons of coal, which is 60 per cent of the 180,000 tons sent in September, under the new agreement. Germany stopped all shipments of coal from October to December.

EX-CITY COUNCILOR SLEUTHS FOR FRIEND

Highlighted by the testimony of former Boston City Councilor James Hein that he trailed the divorced wife of a friend, the alimony case of John H. Hartnett, provision firm executive, was taken under advisement in Middlesex Probate Court today.

Hartnett, of 412 Pleasant st., Melrose, is seeking modification of $7 a week alimony payments to his divorced wife, Mrs. Alice Hartnett. He told Judge Joseph W. Monahan he makes $50 a week, but that he has been forced to borrow to meet expenses, which include board for his three children.

Hein, with several pages of typewritten notes, testified in detail of trailing Hartnett's brunette former wife to cafes and a downtown hotel.

Several times he saw her drinking at Massachusetts ave. cafes, he testified, and once became a member of her party although he said she did not seem to recognize him.

Hein, asked why he had taken enough interest to do the detective work, said it was "for the sake of the children."

In contradiction, Mrs. Hartnett denied she had been drinking in restaurants or had gone to a downtown hotel.

Woman Wills Fund To Help Students

Wellesley College and the University of New Hampshire benefited today under the will of the late Mrs. Adelaide M. Godding of Newton, filed in Middlesex Probate Court.

Wellesley College received a trust fund of $3000 to provide a scholarship for worthy students. The bequest to the University of New Hampshire will be determined after numerous specific bequests are paid, as directed by Mrs. Godding, head of a Boston drug firm.

Flames swept two structures and damaged a third, forcing 15 families, comprising 60 persons, to the street. Damage of $50,000 was caused as the blaze menaced the city's business center.

Chief Walter E. Lynch of Engine 1 and William Cote, hoseman, were cut by glass. Both are on the danger list at Leominster Hospital.

FLAMES SPREAD

An earlier explosion in the Crystal Ball cafe was the first warning of the fire. Flames spread with incredible speed through the building and Mr. and Mrs. John Antonucci and three children barely escaped with their lives from an apartment over the cafe.

Fire Chief Ernest P. Johnson ordered a general alarm sounded as 15-foot flames leaped to the adjoining Iacabone block. A dress shop and shoe store on the first floor were quickly consumed. From upstairs apartments were driven out the families of Leo LaFrance and Francisco Iacaboni.

Twelve more families, fled from the nearby Little building as the blaze threatened to spread farther, GLASS FLEES

Huge glass fragments flew 50 feet across Central st., endangering the lives of firemen and spectators, when hot air caused the second explosion.

Chief Johnson requested Inspector James A. Trainer of the state fire marshal's office to investigate the fire, which police said was the second to break out in the building this year.

BERLIN RAPS F.D., CITES RACE ISSUE

BERLIN, April 16 (INS)—Germany snapped back at President Roosevelt today for his speech before the Pan-American Union governing board and counselled him, in effect, to mind his own business.

Authoritative Wilhelmstrasse quarters commented that when the American Chief Executive complains about aggressive intervention or interference he is—"unwittingly or not"—hitting at the war aims of the Allies.

To support this contention German quarters cited the alleged French "war map," publication of which created an international stir several weeks ago. The map, photographed in French Premier Paul Reynaud's office during his conference with American Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, showed Germany with its boundaries considerably reduced.

SLAP AT ALLIES

(Editor's Note: In his speech yesterday President Roosevelt criticized the practices of dictatorships and warned that the American nations must be prepared to "meet force with force" to preserve peace in the western hemisphere.)

"Furthermore," said a German spokesman, "the allied declarations of their intentions to destroy Hitlerism certainly must be placed in the category of un-called-for interference in our own affairs."

Commenting on President Roosevelt's remarks contrasting the Western Hemisphere with portions of the Old World, Berlin quarters declared:

RACIAL ISSUE IN U. S.

"If President Roosevelt speaks of fallacies of our racialism, then we say:

"Roosevelt, you sweep before your own door."

"The racial question in Germany is little different from that in America, save that the Negro is in the role of the Jew in Germany. But the principle is the same, and what is permissible in one is permissible in the other."

"On the question of aggressive expansion, we hope fair-minded Americans will be willing to examine America's past history, when events repeatedly took place which parallel and therefore justify the course of events in Germany."

"In any event it must be stated that European conditions must not be regulated by America, or rather by Roosevelt, but purely in the European manner and for the best European interests."

Death to Snipers, Germans' Oslo Order

OSLO, April 15 (delayed) (AP)—The death sentence has been proclaimed for snipers in Oslo, and several groups of Norwegians are liable to this penalty for forming bands and fighting German soldiers in the streets of the capital.

Most of them are young people who, German authorities say, "believed they had the right to fight" the Germans.

SILENCED in court was Lillian Roth, night club singer, when she tried to speak at trial of her assault charge against Eugene J. Weiner, her fiancé.

Norwegian Radio Station Destroyed

BERLIN, April 16 (AP)—The official German news agency, DNB, reported today that German troops had blown up a Norwegian broadcasting station at Notodden.

DNB explained that the station during the past few days had continued disseminating anti-German broadcasts. Notodden is approximately 50 miles southwest of Oslo.

NORSE LOSE TOWN CLOSE TO SWEDEN

By STEN HEDMAN

International News Service Staff Correspondent

STOCKHOLM, April 16—While the war in Norway moved ever closer to Sweden's borders, Norwegian troops evacuated their border town of Kongsvinger this afternoon. Up to 1 p. m., however, no German troops had entered Kongsvinger.

British troops remained in full possession of Narvik and surrounding territory. The Germans, however, driven out of that far northern port by British naval batteries, halted their wild flight and turned on a Norwegian company between Mundalen and Bearfjeld. The latter town is only three miles from the Swedish border.

The Norwegians were driven back and the Germans occupied Bearfjeld station on the Narvik Iron Ore railway.

The attacking Germans, however, are isolated and probably will be forced to cross the Swedish border and be interned. Large numbers of Norwegians, including soldiers, already have crossed into Sweden.

Sweden took extensive air raid precautions, while a state of siege was declared at ports such as Gothenburg and Gavele. From noon onward, no ships were allowed to enter these harbors without permits.

Although the British held their positions at Narvik and Harstad, the Germans were believed to be consolidating in various sections of the country. A German troop train arrived from Trondheim at a station only three miles from the Swedish winter sports resort of Storlien. A German detachment left the train at Gudea and stood guard over bridgeheads leading into Sweden.

Norwegian troops retreating from Kongsvinger blew up bridges to delay the German advance. Meanwhile a flight of civilians over the Swedish border from Norway north of Rokkestad reached panic proportions.

Seven Norwegian warplanes landed Monday in the Swedish province of Delarna. Their crews were interned.

FIRE NAZI AIR BASE IN NORWAY

types sailed for Norway, heavily guarded by British war vessels.

Although the Admiralty and War Office remained silent regarding the northern Norwegian port of Narvik, the capture of Narvik "and surrounding territory" was announced by the British broadcasting company.

Occupation of Narvik by the British in a bloody battle that was said to have forced the Germans into a sudden retreat was revealed following the joint Admiralty and War Office communique stating British forces had landed at several Norwegian coastal points.

For the past several days, all ships arriving at several key coastal British ports have been pressed into service and repainted hurriedly preparatory for departure for Norway.

HARD TASK AHEAD

Meanwhile, public elation over yesterday's announcement of the Norwegian landings sobered somewhat as a result of inspired comment and expert statements to the effect that the decisive phase of the Scandinavian campaign is yet to come.

The Allies, it was pointed out, still are only beginning the task, and a long struggle lies ahead—particularly if the Germans are not checkmated quickly in the Oslo area.

Consensus in London was that "nothing startling" should be expected immediately.

Curiosity was aroused in political circles, at the same time, by the fact that the Times of London raised its powerful voice once more to demand a cabinet reshuffle that would bring "new blood" into the British government.

NEED NEW MEN

This demand was reiterated by the Times at a moment when Prime Minister Chamberlain and First Lord of the Admiralty Churchill were receiving public acclaim for the apparent success of the first stages of the Norwegian campaign.

New members are needed in the government, said the Times, to

AT TRONDHEIM—Sent to reinforce blitzkrieg army that invaded Norway, German troops disembark at Trondheim. Photo was radioed from Berlin, passed by German censor.

"lighten the strain" on Chamberlain's war cabinet.

After the occupation of Narvik, German threats to raid Britain from the closer Norwegian air bases was answered by new British assaults upon German-held Norwegian strong points.

Flying through a snow-storm, British bombers sank two German flying boats moored at the Stavanger seaplane base, it was claimed. The squadron also heavily bombed the Stavanger airdrome, which lies only about 300 miles from Britain's naval bases at Scapa Flow and the Firth of Forth.

(A Reuters dispatch quoted the Italian Stefani agency as reporting the British had landed at seven Norwegian points—Tromsøe in the north, Narvik, Hodo, Sorfold, Balne and two points on Balsefjord.)

In a radio broadcast, Norwegian authorities were asked to "enter into closest contact with the Anglo-French Allies."

"Help for Norway, which the Norwegian government asked the British and French to provide, is assuming great proportions," the broadcast stated.

French, Nazis Both Lose in Skirmishes

PARIS, April 16 (AP)—French and German patrols, scouting in the No-Man's land between the Maginot and Siegfried lines, were reported today in military dispatches to have fought a series of scattered local engagements with losses on both sides.

London Bars Nude Girls at Shows

LONDON, April 16 (AP)—Leaders of the London entertainment world agreed today to ban nudity as an amusement spectacle.

The agreement, reached in a conference with the Earl of Clarendon, lord chamberlain, official guardian of public morals, was considered a preliminary to a formal edict against nudist and "strip tease" shows at London theaters and night clubs.

London chorus girls who had raised an outcry against "strip tease" acts were barred from the conference.

The definition of when an undressed girl is not "nude" appeared to be:

"When she is standing motionless on a half-lighted stage, with an artistic background."

The girls of one West End production, called "Fig Leaves," delayed the opening recently by objecting "fig leaves" were insufficient covering.

Torpedo Kills 9 On British Ship

LONDON, April 16—The 4511-ton British steamer Stancliffe was torpedoed off the Scottish coast Friday, it was learned today when rescuers found a lifeboat containing 16 men and eight bodies of members of the crew. One of the rescued later died.

A second lifeboat containing 15 men was believed lost with all hands.

The Scottish trawler Sansonnet is feared lost as result of a German air attack on April 3. Ten men were aboard.

The trawler Gorspen was sunk and three other trawlers were attacked.

The trawler John Donovan was reported to have routed a German bomber with a burst of fire which damaged the bomber.

Nazis Shift Map of Norway

BERLIN, April 16 (AP)—So far as German newspapers are concerned, northern Norway apparently has ceased to exist since the British fleet closed in on Narvik.

War maps published in the Berlin papers show only southern Norway as far north as Trondheim, which is the area most stoutly held by the Germans.

CHASE VICTIM IMPROVES

U.S. EYES DUTCH INDIES AFTER TOKYO THREAT

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP)—Uncle Sam fixed two sharp eyes today on the Dutch East Indies, as the European war clouded the Netherlands and Japan expressed interest in the islands' future.

Nazi Trade Shut Off by Rumania

BUCHAREST, April 16 (INS)—The Rumanian government today clamped sharp restrictions on exports of cereals, gasoline, oil and coal to meet the defense needs of the country.

The measures were expected to elicit sharp reaction from Germany, which is largely dependent upon Rumanian supplies for its military and civilian needs.

(Editor's Note: A Bucharest dispatch to the official German DNB said that the Bucharest military commander issued a proclamation establishing as "military zones" all streets adjoining government and military buildings there. Residents or persons employed in these areas will be required to obtain identification papers, DNB said. No official reasons for the move was given.)

Present contracts for exports of Rumania's rich natural resources will be fulfilled, it was said, but no new contracts will be signed.

Rumanian circles said restrictions will not affect the flow of oil to Germany, but, on the contrary, will ensure its continuance.

Meanwhile German-Rumanian trade talks continued. New measures will prevent the British Balkan Co. from obtaining Rumanian wheat. It was understood the French obtained a relatively small wheat contract with Rumania before the decree became effective.

Authorities stated 42,000 tons of wheat had been shipped to Germany and the remainder of the annual contingent of 300,000 tons would be delivered soon.

Decks Awash, Scheer Towed Into Port

LONDON, April 16 (INS)—Lying heavily, her decks awash, the 10,000-ton German pocket battleship Admiral Scheer was sighted by fishermen on the Vaa Islands being towed into port, according to a Daily Mail dispatch today from Stockholm.

Britain asserted that the submarine Spearfish had torpedoed the Scheer, but Germany denied the claim.

Nazis Give Haakon Last Chance to Save Throne

BERLIN, April 16 (AP)—Authorized German sources intimated today that King Haakon VII of Norway, whom they described as the "captive" of his advisers, has one more chance to save his throne—by recognizing the interim government established at Oslo with Berlin's approval.

The government, it was said, derived its authority from the president of the Norwegian Supreme Court, who set up the new regime through powers regarded as devolving upon him under the Norwegian constitution when the regular government is unable to function.

Such a condition, authorized sources said, now exists in Norway.

The explanation of the German position followed an announcement by the German high command reporting further strengthening of the Nazi position in Norway and denying that British troops had gained a foothold in German-occupied areas.

DENY ALLIED LANDINGS

The communique said that "strong" British naval forces, accompanied by troop transports, had been observed yesterday off Narvik and Harstad, 35 miles to the north, but said there had been no attempts at a landing there.

Two British planes were reported shot down in raids on Narvik and Stavanger, and "pacification" of southern Norway was said to be "proceeding on schedule."

North of Kristiansand, on the southwest coast, 2150 officers and men of the third Norwegian division were said to have surrendered after a "short attack" by Nazi troops.

Coastal defenses at Stavanger,

Trondheim and Bergen—all in German hands—were augmented, the high command said.

Amplifying the situation with respect to the interim government in Oslo, authorized sources said that the German minister, Kurt Breuer, was now regularly in contact with the Norwegian representatives.

WILL OF THE PEOPLE

The government, headed by Ingolf Elster Christensen, former Norwegian army captain and one-time cabinet minister, was said to be composed of representatives of Norwegian businessmen and scientists.

Maj. Vidkun Quisling, who had preceded Christensen as head of the interim government, was entrusted with the task of demobilizing the Norwegian army.

In the German view the new regime was formed "on the assumption that the King will respect the Norwegian constitution and give his sanction," but it was intimated that the government would be recognized even if the King withheld his approval.

DON'T NEED SLEEP NOW

The Germans insisted that establishment of the new government was in accordance with the will of the Norwegian people and was formed without any pressure on Germany's part.

Military authorities said that they were in direct radio communication with Narvik and that no encounter, with British troops had occurred there.

Tells How G-Men Baited Plot Suspects

NEW YORK, April 16 (AP)—Denis A. Healy, chief government witness at the trial of 16 men charged with plotting to overthrow the United States government, testified that he bought arms for the defendants and received ammunition from government stores.

It was Healy's fifth day on the stand and his fourth under cross-examination.

Asst. U. S. Atty. C. Vincent Quinn moved successfully for dismissal of charges against Claus Gunther Ernecke, 36, German-born defendant who hanged himself last week.

Federal Judge Marcus B. Campbell ruled that evidence involving Ernecke in the alleged conspiracy was admissible against the surviving defendants.

HELPS G-MEN

Healy, a railroad engineer who has testified he kept the FBI informed as the alleged seditious plot developed, said he bought shells at a sporting goods store with FBI money and on FBI instructions.

The ammunition, he said, was used by the "Action Committee," also known as the "Sports Club," in maneuvers at Narragansett, N. Y., last fall.

Defense counsel Leo Healy conducted the cross-examination.

Q—Did the FBI tell you to take this money and buy ammunition? A—They told me to contribute to all activities.

Q—Did you ever get ammunition out of an armory? A—Yes. DID NOT STEAL

Q—Did you steal it? A—No. Capt. George Barker (of the 101st Cavalry, New York National Guard) gave me about 50 rounds of 30.06 shells and a machine gun belt.

Witness Healy related that on instructions from FBI agents, he invited Ernecke and another defendant, Macklin Boettger, to the cellar of his home, where a recording device had been installed by the FBI and that he questioned them and served drinks.

He testified that he understood that some of the defendants were not members of the Christian Front and reiterated that the "Action Committee" and not the Christian Front planned an uprising.

CASH FOR GUN

Healy testified that he once had offered to get Ernecke a gun for a dollar and that he had given Boettger $23.50 to buy him (Healy) a rifle at a sporting goods store. He said that at the price the rifle was a bargain and that he had mentioned the purchase to FBI confidants before giving Boettger the money.

Healy testified that at one meeting Boettger had discussed "blowing up the Daily Worker," New York Communist party newspaper. "When was it to be blown up?" defense counsel asked. "There was no definite time set."

Hood Rubber Co. President to Speak

C. Lawrence Munch, president of the Hood Rubber Co., Watertown, will be the principal speaker tonight at the monthly meeting of the New England branch of the Controllers' Institute of America. The meeting will be held at the University Club. Munch has been a Hood Rubber Co. executive for more than 20 years. He is also director of the Associated Industries of Massachusetts.

STONEHAM BUILDING CRASHES

With a crash that alarmed the neighborhood, a two-story wooden building in Franklin st., Stoneham sq., collapsed today under the weight of tons of paper stored on its second floor.

The paper bales broke through into the first floor and basement and walls of the building bulged precariously, threatening to topple into the street.

Police and firemen reported of the area, while public works department engineers surveyed the damage and made plans for shoring up the structure or tearing it down completely.

The building is owned by Eli Cohen, head of a shoe manufacturing plant next door.

The stored paper on the second floor was Cohen's, police said.

3 Quakes Recorded By Priest in Weston

The Rev. James J. Devlin, S. J., seismologist at Weston College, reported today a strong earthquake, about 4700 miles from Weston, was felt at 1:07:51 a. m., which would have been "destructive" if it had taken place in a populous district. Fr. Devlin said two after-shocks were recorded at 1:54:18 and 3:02:55 a. m. He added he was unable to determine the location of the disturbance.

SALUTE CASE UP TONIGHT

The Quincy school committee at a special meeting tonight in the Senior High School building will hear an appeal by Calvin D. Wentworth, 10-year-old fourth grade pupil of the Quincy school in Atlantic, who refused to salute the flag with his class.

Hub Auto Dealer, Friend, Killed in Plane Crash

emerging from the woods in search of aid.

"I don't know what happened to the others or the plane," Smith gasped. "I set out for help."

Taken to Middlesex Hospital, his injuries were listed as fractures of the ribs, one arm, cuts on the face and hands and burns.

Led by state police of the West-brook barracks, more than 100 volunteers sought the site of the crash. When they found it, they discovered Pilot Hartwell about 200 feet away. He said he had started for aid but had collapsed. Rain revived him just as searchers reached his side.

Hartwell was treated at the same hospital for minor burns and a fractured ankle.

The bodies of Noyes and Rideout were found burned beyond recognition in the ship. State Police Sgt. Irving T. Schubert of the West-brook barracks made the identification after Smith told him that there were but four persons in the plane.

Noyes was the son of the late Harry K. Noyes, founder of the Noyes-Buick Co. He was president of the company, one of the largest automobile agencies in New England. Rideout was listed as a receiver with the same concern.

Noyes had his family home on Prospect st., Newton Highlands, and had estates at Marblehead and Palm Springs.

He was well known at Marblehead, where he maintained Tioga Towers, and kept his fleet of yachts. Among them was the $50,000 Delsel yacht Kyran and his sailing yacht, the Tioga and Tioga-ette; the latter the yacht with which he recently won the famous ocean race between Miami and Nassau.

He leaves his wife and four children, Mrs. Hope Noyes, well known yachtswoman, at the Corinthian Yacht Club, Harry K. Noyes, 2d, a student at Harvard; Edward Pike Noyes and Bradley Noyes.

Rideout is a nephew and has a wife and one son, Robert, Jr. His home is on Washington st., Marblehead.

Connecticut State Aeronautics Commissioner Charles L. Morris and Coroner Morris H. Wrubel began an immediate investigation as to the cause of the crash.

Robert Love, president of Inter-city Airlines, left Boston to assist in conducting the crash probe. He said the accident was the first in eight years to mar the line's safety record.

EVENING AMERICAN, TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1940

$76,000 Runnells' Money is Seized

AUGUSTA, Me., April 16—Picturing the accused as a "Jekyll-Hyde" of the state's money bags, investigators today reported uncovering a total of $76,000 allegedly salted away by the resigned State Controller William A. Runnells, $5000-a-year official.

Runnells, 45, who held sweeping authority over the state's finances during his eight years as controller, was described by authorities as a penny-pinching advocate of economy by day and an alleged juggler of accounts at night.

Duped by Runnells, said officials, were employees of his department who performed secret night work at the Runnells home, for which they testified, they were paid "overtime" from Runnells' personal funds.

The witness, it was learned, told investigators that Runnells pledged secrecy from the employee declaring the wrong involved state records.

Actually, said officials, Runnells utilized innocent assistants in the task of allegedly juggling accounts in an official report the state controller had prepared as the state's true financial condition.

WILL SEARCH IN BOSTON

Meanwhile, Gov. Lewis O. Barrows announced a search of safe deposit boxes would be widened to include New York, Boston and several cities and towns in Maine.

The chief executive said a total of $76,000 found in safe deposit boxes was uncovered through information given by Edward Runnells, brother of Runnells, and his mother, Mrs. Jennie Runnells.

Approximately $26,000 in $5, $10 and $20 bills was found in Runnells' brief case shortly after Runnells have resigned and was charged with embezzlement of part of a shortage in excess of $35,000, the Governor said.

FIND $25,000 MORE

An additional $25,000 has been discovered in two of five safe deposit boxes Runnells maintained in banks in Augusta, Hallowell and Gardiner, the Governor added.

"Information concerning the contents of the other three boxes that remain to be examined, probably tomorrow, indicates that probably another $25,000 will be found," the Governor said.

The attorney general's office has started legal proceedings in efforts to claim the money for the state, Gov. Barrows explained.

Meanwhile, authorities indicated Runnells will be arrested and transferred to jail from the Augusta Hospital this week. Reported recovering from "accidentally" self-inflicted bullet wounds, Runnells, under guard, now is able to sit up and talk with friends and counsel.

SAYS NO WHITEWASH

Declaring he sought to end rumors of a Republican whitewash of the exposure of conditions, the Governor said he had named a Democrat, Atty. Leonard A. Pierce of Portland, as a special assistant to Ralph M. Ingalls, special assistant attorney general conducting the probe.

Chairman Harold S. Board of the state liquor commission, lucrative source of revenue for the state, disclosed that for six years cash and check receipts paid for licenses and beer had been delivered to Runnells' office, in violation of the administrative code of 1932. Under the code, no money was supposed to be handled by the state controller, who was not bonded to handle cash.

Roger Baker Pardon Denied

Petition for a pardon for Roger E. Baker, former Boston night-club operator and founder of the N. E. Baseball League, was rejected today by Governor Saltonstall following unfavorable reports by Atty. Gen. Paul A. Dever, Commissioner of Corrections Arthur T. Lyman and the advisory board of paroles.

The petition seeking freedom for Baker, now serving a sentence of 12 to 22 years at Norfolk prison colony following conviction on larceny charges in 1933, was signed by 10 prominent citizens, friends of the prisoner.

The former baseball and night club impresario was found guilty in 1935 on 81 counts of larceny and forgery, totaling $16,500, which the state charged was only part of $50,000 which he allegedly took from the Diamond-Gynkraut Kid Manufacturing Company, a firm he served as treasurer.

The state charged he used the stolen funds to finance the twilight league and a chain of restaurants, stealing the money from the concern by writing checks in the names of non-existent persons.

Lodge, Martin GOP Post Possibilities

WASHINGTON, April 16 (AP)—Capitol political interest shifted today to a meeting of the Republican arrangements committee at Philadelphia, with well-informed sources predicting that Gov. Harold E. Stassen of Minnesota would be designated keynote speaker for the party's national convention.

Besides Stassen only Glenn Frank, chairman of the Republican program committee, and Alf M. Landon, the party's 1936 Presidential nominee, have been mentioned prominently for the speech-making post. Some of Landon's friends expressed the opinion that he would not want the job.

It was reported authoritatively that an influential group of Senate Republicans was suggesting Senator Lodge (R) of Massachusetts for permanent chairman of their national meeting.

MARTIN MENTIONED

There also was discussion of Rep. Martin (R) of Massachusetts, the minority floor leader, for the permanent chairmanship, which is filled by the convention itself.

On the Democratic side, some discussion was heard in congressional quarters that a Senator opposed to some New Deal measures might be selected as keynoter in order to promote party unity.

Among those mentioned were Senators George (D) of Georgia and Tydings (D) of Maryland, both of whom President Roosevelt sought to unseat in the 1938 primaries.

Politicians, meanwhile, were seeking to analyze the resignation of William W. Howes as first assistant postmaster-general—ostensibly to aid the candidacy of Postmaster-General Farley in Democratic honors.

FAVORABLE TO FARLEY

Howes said after a White House visit yesterday that he was seeking to see Democratic National committee from his state of South Dakota and to head an unstructured convention delegation.

The delegation of eight presumably would be favorable to Farley, but associates of Howes said that did not mean it would be unfriendly to the third term idea.

GAS BLAST
TIP WINS
1ST PRIZE

A Weymouth man who first reported that an explosion shook the East Braintree plant of the Old Colony Gas Co. last week, killing four, injuring more than a score and causing an estimated $1,000,000 damage, wins top prize of $5 in the Weekly Tipster Contest.

The contest is sponsored by the Boston Record-Boston American-Boston Sunday Advertiser.

A $2 award goes to a Boston man for information that a holdup man was slain by police bullets following the holdup of a West Newton st., Back Bay, variety store.

Another $2 award goes to a Squantum priest for the tip that a mission priest on his way to a church administered the last rites of the church to a heart attack victim he found lying in the street.

GIVES DRAWING TIP

Two other $2 awards go to a Belmont man for reporting a drowning in Weston after an automobile plunged into the river, and an East Boston man for the tip that an East Boston bridegroom of a week had shot and killed himself.

Awards of $1 each go to a Roxbury man for reporting an attempt to shoot a census taker in Dorchester, a Chelsea man for a Chelsea holdup, a Portsmouth, N. H., woman for news of a strike among Needham restaurant fire, a West Medford man for pictures of a West Medford auto crash, a Needham man for news of a strike among Needham High School students over change in bus service; an East Boston man for a two-truck collision in Norwood in which one was killed; an East Boston man for the tip that a youthful bicyclist lost his life following collision with an oil truck.

WIN OTHER AWARDS

Other $1 awards go to a Cambridge woman for the tip that a woman was to be carried into Suffolk Court on a stretcher to testify in an auto case; an East Braintree man for a graphic story of the gas explosion; a Reading man for a Reading fire in which a child was rescued and three firemen overcome; a Roxbury man for the tip that a Boston woman book-keeper was robbed of $500 on her way to a bank, and a Somerville man for the tip that automobile shipments of a Cambridge transportation company were stoned by strikers.

The contest is open to any one. When you see something of news or picture value happening, get in with the News Tip Editor, Liberty 4000, and your tip may win a cash prize. Watch this column weekly for winners.

3 Maine Auto
Thieves Held

NEWBURYPORT, April 16.—Three Maine youths, one armed with a six-inch dagger, and all on parole from that state, were arrested in a stolen car here today. Later, in district court, Judge Nathaniel N. Jones gave Harlan Dinmore, 19, of Rockland; Percy Akley, 19, of Gray, and Leland Libby, 20, of South Portland, suspended sentences of a year each on charges of stealing an auto. Libby was given an extra year for carrying a concealed weapon, and Dinmore fined $20 for driving a car without a license.

The car was stolen in a Portland garage. Maine officers will come here to return the boys to Portland.

Catholic Women's Congress April 23

Catholic education, literature, art and interpretation of world events will be discussed at the fourth Diocesan Congress of Catholic Women to be held April 23 and 24 at Hotel Somerset.

Bishop Richard J. Cushing will open the conference with a discourse on "The Peace of Christ."

Hollywood Paragraphs

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, April 16.—There's no actress in Hollywood who has had the tough break that Frances Langford has had in the movies. Possessed of a superb singing voice, in a way it has stood between her and any chance of movie success.

Now at last she's going to get a break on the RKO lot with Lum Abner and for the first time plays a straight role.

I was amazed how well Frances photographed in a screen snapshot made by Harriet Parsons—the first time that I ever thought the screen had been kind to her. She has wanted, more than anything else, to be able to act and here's her chance.

All the chit-chat of Robert Young doing this and that movie is apparently advance news and not too reliable for Bob starts the 27th of this month on "One Came Home," a story of Kentucky and horse racing. Lewis Stone plays his father-in-law and Sylvan S. Simon will do the megaphoning.

'RETURN OF THE VAGABOND'---COHAN IN ALL HIS GLORY

EVENING AMERICAN, TUESDAY, APRIL 16, 1940

Merry Show for All

By PEGGY DOYLE

George M. Cohan, who'd rather be right behind the footlights than be President, was where he belonged last night—back on the Colonial stage in "The Return of the Vagabond," sequel to his 20-year-old melodrama, "The Tavern."

In this frighteningly cheerful world, it was reassuring to re-discover the indestructible charm of the ageless Yankee Doodle Boy who at 61 has more pull for an audience than an entire Florida sex-tette of Ann Sheridan. He positively seethes with exuberance, and for the better part of three hours last night he pushed war farther away than the planet Mars while a handsomely turned out capacity audience laughed itself to exhaustion.

For those whose theatrical memory does not go back to post-World War days, "The Tavern" was a burlesque on melodrama, boasting an ersatz thunderstorm and a recurrent phrase that promptly became a part of the language—"What's all the shootin' for?"

The Tavern, scene of the entire action in the original production, has been artfully reproduced by Oden Waller. It again provides the background for the "lightly woven, disconnected spectacle of tragic nonsense" of which the lonely Vagabond speaks.

They are all here again—the Governor and his family, the black-hearted crooks and the Keystone Comedy Cops cavorting about the plotless plot with Saroyanesque zeal.

The wind howls, villainy is rampant. And, sotto voce, romance is having a thin time for the bridegroom WILL, retired under the eiderdown, the bride having insisted that her parents, the Governor and his lady, accompany them on the honeymoon.

And all the while, the man nobody knows, the Vagabond looks on, laughing, weeping, thrilled, applauding.

It is a field-day for George M. the song-and-dance man whose acting skill recognizes no boundaries. In the swaggering cape and the vagabondish fedora that have been resurrected from "The Tavern" lares and penates, he saunters across the boards last night with that characteristic loping gait that even the blinding thunderstorm could not disguise.

With that mastery that is a blend of native art and years old technique, he held his audience in the palm of his articulate hand, willing them to laugh or be serious. Still boasting an Astaire waistline and a Chevalier twinkle, he is easily one of our first actors. And it hasn't gone to his head—he is still singing and dancing to remind our betters of the Four Cohans of days ago.

Pure platinum is the setting he has chosen for his perfect diamond of a performance. McKay Morris's Governor is a noble gentleman and his wife, as played by Marie Louise Dana, a lady entirely worthy of his name. Their daughter, Celeste Holm, is much too enchanting to be spending a groomless bridal night. John Morris, as the recalcitrant groom, is entertainingly neurotic.

Donna McCelland and George Thornton are as deep-deyed a pair of crooks as you'll encounter in a five-foot shelf of coin novels and George W. Smith's cop is as dated as early Hollywood's "Great Train Robbery" pose. Joe Verdi's Italian, John Cherry's doctor and Edward McNamara's sheriff are as tight as the rain slithering down the Tavern's windows.

For the time of your life don't miss "The Return of the Vagabond."

Gayety Hit

Balinese or Brooklyn, Yvette Dore, plus her prismatic parrot in "Dance of Bali," is the customers' favorite belle in the Gayety's current burlesque revue, "Belles of Bali." She is a striking Juno who wears atmosphere handsomely. Other come-hither belles in the cast are Marcia, Diane King, Jean Wade and the St. Clair Sisters.

Margie Hart Goes Sarong at Howard

Recognizing the advertising value of plenty of white space, Margie Hart has espoused the sarong for footlights' war. Her Old Howard fans are all for the idea. She is heading the current "Streets of Paris" revue, the brand-new road show at the Old Howard.

Shimmy Queen Globe's Star

One of burlesque's happiest malings is Charmaine and the shimmy with which she is now popping the eyes of the Globe's capacity clientele. Charmaine is not only sensational. She is also beautiful. Collaborating in a veritable league of native dances are Mary Murray, Lillian Collins, Jean Guest, Mae Sevier, Lillian Harrison and Irma Denning, who represent far flung corners of the earth. The current show will continue until Thursday midnight when the special holiday week-end revue will be shown in at the Patriots' Day eve show.

HOW BALANCE OF POWER MAY SHIFT IN EUROPE

1. Italy—If Italy, as experts expect, throws in with Germany and launches such planes as these against the Allies, the seething cauldron of international powerics will bubble . . . with the Balkans the battleground. See right . . . No. 2 . . .

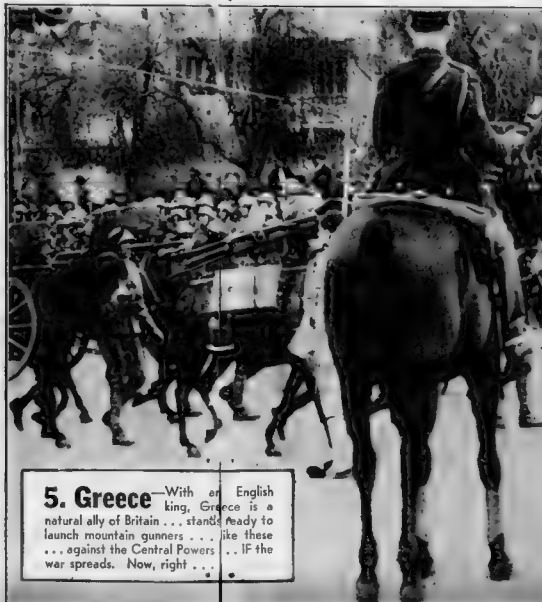

4. Rumania—If Russia enters the war, Rumania can add to her own territory only on the side of the Allies . . . when a victorious peace may give her vast chunks of the Ukraine. And now, right . . . No. 5 . . .

2. Turkey

Avowed enemy of Italy, Turkey can on the face of past utterances lose no time in siding against the Central Powers . . . and under the star and crescent. See right . . . No. 3 . . .

5. Greece—With an English king, Greece is a natural ally of Britain . . . stands ready to launch mountain gunners . . . like these . . . against the Central Powers . . . If the war spreads. Now, right . . .

3. Russia

And if Turkey goes in, Berlin's promise of the coveted Dardanelles is expected to lose such hardy as this against the star and crescent. See extreme left . . . No. 4 . . .

Meanwhile—Secure in Greece's friendship, Britain maintains a great Mediterranean fleet in Navarino Bay . . . a threat to Italy if the tinderbox of Europe flares into wider spread war.

And Yugo-Slavia—Age-old enemy of Italy and recently ired by argument over boundary of Fiume, Italy, and Jutak, Yugo-Slavia, (see white line on photo), the Yugo-Slav peoples stand ready to avenge insult, add weight to the Allied cause.

MAN'S ANCIENT FOES which has claimed millions of human lives in past centuries are being conquered.

This is the hopeful news at M. I. T., where Professor Murray P. Horwood predicts that such old scourges as smallpox, typhoid fever and diphtheria will be extinct in the next generation and that a decrease of 75 per cent in tuberculosis may be possible because of new methods of treatment.

Professor Horwood is undoubtedly right. Certainly, he is strongly supported in his optimism by the achievements of medical science during the past half-century.

Our own State records show that in 1872 more than one thousand of the 3500 persons who contracted smallpox died.

Today, thanks to compulsory vaccination, a death from that malady almost never occurs.

There has been similar progress in the control of tuberculosis. Practical education programs, effective treatment and intelligently managed sanatoriums have caused the death rate from this disease to decline more than 75 per cent in the last 40 years, and it is still falling.

With enlightened public attention being focused on social diseases, hitherto not mentioned in polite society, there is also abundant reason to believe they may be greatly curtailed in the next decade.

If civilized man resolved really to attack the germs that have been attacking him from the beginning of time and fought with only half the zeal he fights in wars for somebody else's land and possessions, smallpox, typhoid fever, tuberculosis and their ilk would disappear from the earth in twenty years.

THE MUSIC CENTER of the world will be the good old United States of America. This is the confident prediction of Dr. Serge Koussevitzky, conductor of the Boston Symphony.

The maestro is especially optimistic when he speaks of the future of Tanglewood, the Berkshire music "Mecca" in the Stockbridge-Lenox region, which is attracting not only amateurs, but experts, including composers, choral and orchestral conductors, symphony orchestra players and famous supervisors.

Dr. Koussevitzky does not mention the European war, but he is undoubtedly thinking seriously about it.

For no one knows better than he that good music is a product of inspired thought and genius and not a result of bursting bombs, exploding shrapnel and the groans of wounded men.

Consequently it is natural and logical to assume that the nation which shuns war and becomes the haven of peace, will also be the refuge for all the fruits of progress.

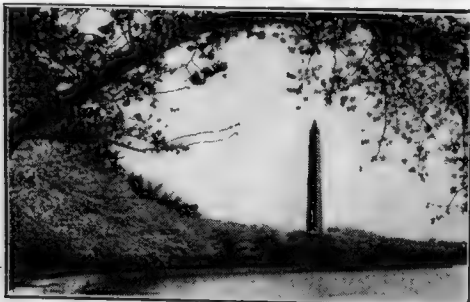

IT'S BLOSSOM TIME in Washington, and thousands of persons from all parts of the country are going there to see the flowering Japanese cherry trees.

Of course the trip is worth while. Yet the great number of people who can afford neither the time nor money to make this annual pilgrimage to the District of Columbia need not be too disappointed.

Awaiting them a few weeks hence in our own New England will be a floral spectacle much more satisfying.

We refer to our blossoming apple orchards.

At best, the Washington display is a formal garden, which, like all formal gardens, symbolizes man's idea of beauty and attests to his foolish striving to improve on Nature's handiwork.

CHERRY BLOSSOM SEASON IN WASHINGTON

It's Beautiful, But We Have Something More Beautiful

Here, on the other hand, trees grow as they were intended by the Creator to grow. They fill the air with delicate perfume. They have ten thousand different shades and tints.

Truly, we should take a leaf from Washington's book and work more zealously to bring visitors to New England. We have so very much more to offer.

Vacation Days

DAYS in the pathless wilderness . . . the laughter of the waterfall . . . pine-scented zephyrs' soft caress . . . the paddle's plash—the loon's wild call.

Portages where swift rapids run . . . crisp bacon sizzling on the fire . . . juniper berries in the sun . . . the reveille of woodland choir.

Antaeus his great strength renewed . . . by touch of Mother Earth, while we . . . renew ours in the solitude . . . of forests deep in mystery.

A few brief days as gods, and then . . . it's back to town—and work again.

MAKE CERTAIN your daughter learns to support herself; then she can be independent and marry for love . . . Daphne is name the Douglas Fairbanks Juniors have given their new child. A very nice name. It's a wonder there are not more girls named Daphne . . . A New York deputy fire chief's pension is figured to be $5,000 a year. Boy, that is a pension. One hundred smackers a week.

IT IS SAID that in 1851 when Amelia Bloomer introduced that quaint bit of feminine attire to be later known as "bloomers," most women wore six starched petticoats. The laundry business must have been good in those days . . . It is reported if and when Liz Whitney gets a divorce the settlement by her husband will be three million dollars and a Virginia farm . . . What is the U. S. record for a divorce settlement? The Hollywood record is the $650,000 settlement of the first Mrs. Douglas Fairbanks.

HOW DO YOU usually serve potatoes, Lady? Baked potatoes hold the vitamins best. Fried potatoes the least. I like baked potatoes. I eat the whole potato. But I like hashed browned potatoes best . . . Chinese ambassador to Britain Quo Tai-Chi stated in a speech in London that "90 per cent of Japanese scrap iron and 65 per cent of its aviation oil and petroleum come from the United States. Without these supplies Japan could not continue the war for a year—perhaps not for six months."

AT LAST, Pappy seems to be getting a break. "Life with Father" was a successful novel and play. In the Judge Hardy Family films the father is more important as a character than the mother. Gene Autry's "That Silver-Haired Daddy of Mine" song has sold 10,000,000 records! In the yesteryear a popular song was a disparaging ditty titled "Everybody Works But Father."

"THE JUDGE who warned women to beware of men with whiskers was right, but he wasted his time," writes a client. "Women just cannot resist men with whiskers, particularly those men with Van Dyke style beards. I have lived in 32 countries. My experience has been when clean shaven I did not impress the fair sex, but when I sported a Van Dyke beard I could hardly keep the beautiful females off my neck so overwhelmed was I with feminine attention." Evidence to support this client's claim is lacking. Orson Welles, a Van Dyke beard wearer, seems, however, always surrounded by glamorous girls, but we do not know whether this is due to Mr. Welles' beard, personality or charm.

IN WORLD WAR Canadian expeditionary forces there were 619,936 men. Of these 51,748 were killed in action and 7798 died of disease. A very high percentage of fatalities.

Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt

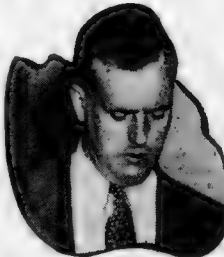

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., April 16—In Fort Smith, Ark., we had the kind of parade which I connect entirely, with visits paid by the President.

Only hope that seeing the apple blossom queens was satisfaction enough for the people who stood so long in the cold. The queens were young and very charming and made me feel very grandmotherly when we were photographed together in one of the rooms at the hotel.

The Democratic ladies had decorated our rooms with the most beautiful flowers, which we enjoyed for all too brief a time. After the lecture and an informal reception, which I left reluctantly before I had the opportunity of shaking hands with all the people who were still thronging the hotel, we returned to the train and were on our way back to Kansas City.

We made a hurried transfer in the morning from the station to the airport and reached Chicago a little after 11.

AT THE HOTEL we occupied a penthouse apartment, where I was shown a framed letter from the President who had stopped there when he was governor. I signed the guest book on the same page which bore my husband's signature and our son, Jimmy's.

MERVYN RATHBORN
"An Able and Wise Leader"

I could have spent a long time examining the prints which lined the walls along the stairs, but time in Chicago was at a premium. We were greeted with many envelopes of mail.

At 4:30 the committee from the American Communications Association called for me. After I gave a brief speech at their meeting, I was able to hear the closing summary of the work of their convention, given by the president, Mr. Mervyn Rathborn, who is an able and wise leader.

Back at the hotel with a very few minutes to spare before the committee from the advisory council of the Chicago Youth Congress, called to take me to the dinner given by them.

The Chicago Youth Congress is fortunate in having such a wide and sympathetic group of older men and women interested in their work. From the dinner we went to the meeting in Orchestra Hall.

I WAS INTERESTED in both the entertainment features and the speeches of the various young leaders and only hope that I contributed some food for thought before I left them and returned to the hotel to stop in for a brief moment at the American Legion hall.

Then to the train again for Battle Creek, Michigan. Here we stayed at the sanitarium, which is a most interesting place. I spoke in the afternoon and we journeyed back to Chicago. Miss Thompson left for Washington at 10 p. m. and yesterday morning I flew to Chattanooga, Tenn., for the Southern Human Welfare Conference.

Broadway Medley CORCORAN'S BRIDE KEEPS JOB By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK, April 16—Peggy Dowd, who became the bride of Tommy Corcoran, will continue in her job as his secretary. "I won't leave that job," she said, "now that I know what can happen to a secretary . . . Sir Stafford Cripps, who sailed for England Saturday after a round-the-world trip in behalf of his government, saw his biographer, Eric Estorick, instructor of sociology at N. Y. U. Estorick showed him newspaper clippings about this forthcoming biography, clippings which told of the many revisions necessitated by Cripps' recent ups-and-downs in political power . . . "But now," the biographer sighed, "at last the book is finished" . . . "Well, here's the final correction," said Sir Stafford—and showed him the 300,000-word official diary of the trip, with his recommendations to be made to the British government concerning India and China.

SIMONE SIMON attended the 'Press Photographers' Ball and came away very much bewildered. While waiting to go on, Lupe Velez shouted: "What are you doin' now?" . . . "I just closed in '3 After 3,'" Simone replied . . . "I didn't ask what you WAS doin'." Lupe shrieked. "What are you doin' on the stage—warr you go on, now?" . . . "I don't know," Simone confessed—was pushed onslage and found herself in Milton Berle's arms . . . "Don't worry," Berle whispered, holding her, "we'll go into that old Fifi D'Orsay routine" . . . Simone looked up at him and whispered: "Oh, it's terrible" . . . "No it isn't," Berle assured, "it's a sure-fire routine" . . . "I mean it's terrible," Simone repeated. "I never heard of Fifi D'Orsay."

LELAND HEYWARD, who has an interest in TWA, is trying to induce Dave Chasen, the Hollywood restaurateur, to open a branch restaurant at Albuquerque, N. M. . . . "The planes stop there," Heyward explained, "and I think you could do business" . . . "In Albuquerque?" replied Chasen. "Do you think the Indians would pay me the $250 I get for a mixed-green salad—when for $21.50 more they bought the island of Manhattan?"

EVERY FRIDAY night, in the RKO projection room, old movies are shown to a select group of people . . . Some nights ago "The Yellow Ticket," a movie made eight years ago, was shown . . . When the hero appeared, in an early scene, loud feminine laughter was heard—and a man in the audience roared: "No, No! Take it off! I'm terrible, simply terrible" . . . The picture was stopped. Laurence Olivier was the object; the laughs were from Vivien Leigh.

SIMONE SIMON

BOSTON After DARK By GEORGE HOLLAND

ONCE OVER LIGHTLY: Having amazed his nearest friends by becoming a bridegroom, George Jessel is behaving like a swain of half his years—enthusiastic . . . He telephoned George M. Cohan from Hartford last night and repeated again and again: "I am very happy" . . . But it was a reproachful Jessel on the Hartford end of the wire . . . "You are the only one, George," he told Mr. Cohan, "who didn't send me a telegram." . . . Mr. Cohan's answer was that he didn't know George was going to be married . . . After all that publicity!

YOU'RE TRULY COULDN'T POSSIBLY have been wronger than he was in believing that the marriage of Mr. Jessel and Miss Lois Andrews would not happen . . . The only person who comes to mind as having been more wrong as a forecaster was George Trommer, the brewer's son from N. Y. . . . Mr. Trommer was lucky that there were no takers (in Boston at least) of his offered odds of ten to one that the Jessel-Andrews nuptials would not take place. . . . (Has Mr. Trommer, by the way, a deal brewing in Boston?)

LOU SMITH, BOSS OF ROCKINGHAM, was the first herald of the news that the Jamaica racetrack opening attracted more than $500,000 to the mutual machines . . . Lou was on the 'phone at 6 p. m. . . . We ventured the guess that the daily average handle at Jamaica would be more than half a million . . . "Half a million?" scoffed Mr. Smith. "Seven hundred thousand will be more like it."

BRIDEGROOM JESSEL AND MR. SMITH are business associates, by the way, as we mentioned here once before . . . Georgie is president of the association which will operate the new Smith-operated track near Tampa, Florida . . . Some of the smartest men in the racing game are stockholders with the big chief of 'ol Rockingham in his Dixieland venture . . . And the papers have passed, the deal is closed . . . Thus the pioneer of New England horse-racing would seem to have sufficient business matters of moment on hand to be regarded as a busy man . . . Particularly in view of the fact that he runs the King's Park track in Montreal, also.

BUT MR. SMITH WILL HAVE some more news to announce in the near future . . . He has tied up the old Syracuse fairgrounds in New York and can, if he wishes, stage a race-meeting there this year . . . But a fellow has to call a halt some place—in deference to the immutability of the Gregorian calendar, which allows only 24 hours a day . . . So there's a chance that the Syracuse notion may be set aside for a year at least in order that Mr. Smith can accept a glowing offer now in hand to be associated with a Jersey track near Camden. (Note: The Camden location, being to Philadelphia as Cambridge is to Boston, is seen as the most promising of the proposed sites in New Jersey.) F. S.: Lucky for Lou he was in New York when Mr. Trommer was offering ten to one that Lois Andrews would not be Mrs. Jessel . . . Mr. Smith was convinced that Jessel's heart

Hollywood Today NEWCOMER GIVEN TOP ROLE By Louella O. Parsons

Jan Hunter

HOLLYWOOD, April 16—I wonder how many of you remember Wilfrid Lawson in "Pygmalion"? He played Wendy Miller's cockney father and the critics all hailed his performance with high praise. Lawson for a long time showed little inclination to accept the Hollywood movie offers tendered him but now he's on the high seas bound for Hollywood to play the ship's captain in "The Long Voyage Home" for John Ford. Because of war conditions the name of the boat Lawson sailed on three days ago, is being kept secret.

"The Long Voyage Home" is almost a one hundred per cent male story with an absence of femme talent similar to Ford's "The Lost Patrol." Dudley Nichols, who adapted the story for the Ford-Argosy company, took four of Eugene O'Neill's one-act plays for the basis of his story which concerns a crowd of rough war-torn sailors. The cast includes John Wayne, Jan Hunter, Tom Mitchell, Ward Bond, Barry Fitzgerald—and up to today no woman.

DORIS NOLAN

SNAPSHOTS OF HOLLYWOOD: Olivia De Havilland and Jimmie Stewart had all the scribes out with spy glasses Saturday. They flew to San Francisco with Margaret Sullivan, Leland Heyward, John Swope and Kay Aldridge to see Vivien Leigh and Laurence Olivier in "Romeo and Juliet" and there were elopement rumors; Josephine Hutchinson, Jimmie Townsend, Margot Stevenson and Garson Kanin, Gregory La Cava with Doris Nolan were a few of the Hollywood folk dancing and dining at the Mark Hopkins in the Bay City.

LANA TURNER doing a hot rhumba with Mickey Rooney at Victor Hugo's while Artie Shaw sat on the sidelines and applauded; Cary Grant returned home today after a hectic New York session; Joan Valerie and Edgar Bergen continue to be aflame; the heat had me down and I stayed at Marsons Farm too weary to dress for the Elsa Maxwell party at Ciro's. They tell me it was lots of fun and that Constance Bennett and Richard Ainsley make no secret of their interest in each other.

CAN YOU imagine dining outdoors in April? We had dinner at the Casey Robinsons on the lawn Friday night. Guest of honor was Lady Gibson. Interesting to meet Rachel Field, author of "All This and Heaven, Too," and her husband, Arthur Pederson. Frances Marion was there and it was good to see her; also Jimmie Whale, Hal Wallis and some 30 others.

TWO-MINUTE STORY

JOE was not in the habit of picking up hitch-hikers, but now here was one right in his car. A boastful young fellow who openly admitted he was a pickpocket. This worried Joe. He drove quickly toward the next town so that he could get rid of his undesirable passenger. Fifty-fifty-five—his car roared faster than he was accustomed to driving. The road was dark and narrow. Suddenly coming on to a stretch of straight road, he became aware of two glaring headlights in his mirror. The sound of a siren chilled his blood. Brakes screeched as they gripped the wheels. Joe came to a stop just as a cruiser drew up alongside. A trooper stepped out, big, burly sort. "What's your hurry?" he snapped, sticking his hand out for license and registration. JOE WAS rattled as a hundred and one thoughts began to crop in his mind. This was his first traffic violation. The hitch-hiker got out of the car and began to plead with the trooper, who merely glared at him and continued to write in his book. Presently the trooper handed Joe a ticket and said, "Excessive speed. That's all." And drove off.

Joe looked dejected. He was on the verge of tears. Turning to his passenger who now looked in from the outside, with a cunning smile playing on his thin lips, he charged, "You're to blame for this." "Me—I say, you're not worried about that ticket are you? Don't, because I've lifted his book. He won't be reporting any more drivers tonight." "Ha, ha, ha," laughed Joe. "Did you really? Boy, you're good. Ho, ho, ho. Here, have a cigar on me." "No thanks," answered the hitch-hiker, "I'm gonna get me some cigarettes up the line on you. Thanks for the lift. Good night." JOE SHRUGGED his shoulders. Put the car in first and was about to go when a sudden realization struck him like a bolt of lightning. He reached for his wallet. It was gone. Can you write a story as dramatic as this. Make an attempt now. Send your story to Two-Minute Story Editor, Boston Evening American, 5 Winthrop Square, Boston. LISTEN, WORLD! By Elsie Robinson

WE ARE, presumably, a free people, walking down a sunny and friendly path. But in every path there coils a death-dealing viper—the viper of INTOLERANCE. A book has been written about that. It is, to me perhaps the greatest book that has been written, the greatest sermon that has been preached, in the last 20 years of American life. It gives the source from which all our American intolerance springs . . . from which, eventually, the next American war may spring. It shows the sources of our prejudice—and the greed which makes capital of our prejudice. It shows our stupidity, and the crookedness which capitalizes on our stupidity. It is not a nice book. It does not use nice language and it tells terrible facts. AS LONG AS you gossip . . . as long as you sneer . . . as long as you belittle another race which is not your own— you belong in a gutter. You have no right to democracy. You are false to all that is American. And you need to read this book. This book is called "King Cobra." It is probably the most shameless and shaming book that has ever been written in America. It lays a dog whip across all our shoulders. It reveals us all for the hypocrites which we are. The man who writes it calls himself Frank Dudley. (Carrick & Evans, New York Publishers). He is not Frank Dudley. He is one of the most brilliant and penetrating editors these United States have ever seen. But because of your—and your—and your prejudices, he dare not write under his own name, this abominable epic of the South and the North and the West and the East, in which the Ku Klux Klan and similar hate pageants were born. He must remain anonymous because you wish the Truth to remain anonymous . . . because you cannot as yet, most of you, face Reality . . . that Reality which you create by your own prejudice and stupidity, your own hate and fear and suspicion. GET "KING COBRA!" Get it and read it. And learn what's in yourself. That self which has bred horror in the past—lynchings, burnings, massacres. Get it and learn what may mean the murder of your own son in some world war fired by your stupidity and hate. (Copyright by King Features Synd., Inc.)

Socialites' Problem

PARAPHERNALIA a woman carries when she is gowned for a formal evening occasion has always been a problem for male escorts . . . Tiny evening bags do not provide much space for lipstick, compact, cigarettes, etc., so Sir Gallant often has to stuff his pockets full . . . In their efforts to travel light, the ladies seldom carry any money or change, so when Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird, Jr., and Mrs. William Endicott, who attended together, wanted to buy some flowers to help the charitable cause they had to borrow a couple of dollar bills from Mr. George Rice and Mr. Eldon McLeod who were in a foursome with their wives . . . Mrs. Bird added the corsage she purchased to the colorful cluster of white tipped pink carnations which brightened her black dinner gown . . .

Many regular first nighters were in their usual seats way down front . . . including the Charles Bacons, Mr. and Mrs. Harold G. Kern, Mr. and Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, Mrs. Catfield Whitman, the Wallace M. Pierces and Mr. and Mrs. Eben Draper, who were hosts at a dinner party before the performance . . .

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Loring Reed and their daughter Sally, had a box next to the John S. Amorys, and Sam Reed escorted Eleanor McClurg, who has just returned from South America . . . The Christian Heriers, fresh from a vacation in Bermuda, were with a party of friends and others in the brilliant audience included Anne Mixer, with her fiancé, Ted Skinner; Leslie Lindsey, with her grandmother, Mrs. Guy Currier, who wore a full length ermine wrap over a cinnamon dinner gown; Mr. and Mrs. Talbot Baker, the latter in a two tone gown of French blue and black; Mrs. William G. You Can Be Beautiful

Moisture Is Youth Secret

By ARLINE GOULD

IF THE TIME comes this spring that you feel you're headed for a crack-up . . . that your skin has never looked more wan and un-fresh . . . you may be sure of one thing. Something has sapped it of its natural moisture . . . and it could be one of a hundred things . . . having to do with the way you live, where you live, even what you eat and do!

What we're interested in is not so much the cause history of your skin as the fact that whatever is responsible for those lines and the fagged look of the tissues, there is a cream which, since your grandmother's prime, has been a really unique moisture-recompense and line lubricant!

Its sole purpose in life is to provide this reconditioning moisture . . . and it depends on your pleasure and your need as to just when and how often you want to use it. Because this fragrant, smooth cream . . . whose formula its authoritative makers swear could not be improved upon . . . has as many uses as you wish to put it to too. Use it as a morning and night cleanser . . . for quick, office clean-ups, or a kitchen re-do when a fresh face will help you see a Monday afternoon through . . . use it as a facial pick-up while you rest your weary bones in the bathtub, one hour before you want to look as though you'd dreamed away the day on a quilted satin chaise longue . . . And best of all, use it overnight for immediate aid in softening the lines you dread seeing take over your nice complexion.

This magnificently created cream, thoroughly rich, has not been altered in the slightest for going-on-the-third-generation. And it was created on the principle that your skin needs its moisture elements just as a rose petal needs dew, if it's to bloom!

If you'd like to learn about this moisture-rewarding cream, created for dry skins which require its youth-preserving qualities (a generous jar is a dollar), phone, ARLINE GOULD, LIBERTY 4000, week-days until 5:30, except Saturday, or write, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Love And Marriage

His Girl Runs Him Ragged

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

We both attended the same co-educational college, and our friendships seemed founded on athletics. We enjoyed playing tennis, hiking, swimming, golfing and other forms of exercise.

We've been out of college for three years, and now I'm not so keen on developing my muscles. But Marianna, (which isn't my angel's name) keeps right on playing—juaah, hiking often eight and ten miles on a Sunday, golfing when the weather permits, winning hours at basketball.

All this seems more or less college stuff to me and I'd like to relax a little. I'm still terribly keen on Marianna, but will I have to go through life with an athletic champion?

When I protest that I'd like to sit down or go to a show, or motor, she calls me an old "softie."

Do girls outgrow their passion for athletics? I'd like to know what has been your experience from letters before I make the next move, which is considering slipping by the open fire in a well-designed bungalow.

"SOFTIE" PERHAPS.

It all depends on the type. A certain tennis champion has dropped one husband, married another, but still maintains her interest in the game. A couple of them have swum the English channel and never married at all. Others have hung up the tennis racquet, gone domestic, and reared lovely babies. So it all simmers down to their fundamental domesticity.

Why not have a plain talk with the young lady? People no longer balk at such pre-marital confidences. Ask her what she intends to do in the way of winning blue ribbons or making home happy if you share that bungalow.

HAT TO BE WORN

DEAR MRS. JEECKMAN:

I wonder if you could tell me if it is proper to dress in formal clothes, no hat, to an evening wedding at an Episcopal church?

What is proper for a gentleman to wear at such a wedding?

K. C.
The wedding is to be a formal evening wedding in an Episcopal church, women guests wear evening dresses, evening wraps, and, in compliance with the regulation "forbidden the uncovering of women's heads in consecrated places of worship," they wear a small evening hat or a scarf of some sort over their hair.

A man guest at a formal evening wears evening clothes—tail-coats.

Sweet Yeast Dough Is Easy

By MARTHA LEE

NOW AND THEN a homemaker likes to try her hand at a recipe that is new for her. Sweet yeast dough is recommended for such hand-testing, for there is great satisfaction in serving puffy, fragrant coffee cakes, fresh from the oven.

Success depends chiefly on kneading the dough until delicate little blisters show just under the satiny smooth surface.

Sweet yeast dough is a two-ounce recipe. Make the entire amount of dough, use half for rolls or a coffee cake, and keep the rest in a covered container in the refrigerator. When needed, shape into rolls or a coffee cake, let rise, and bake.

SWEET YEAST DOUGH

2 cakes compressed yeast
1 cup lukewarm water
1 cup milk
1/2 cup butter
1/2 cup sugar
1 tsp. salt
2 eggs, beaten
1 tsp. grated lemon rind, if desired
5 cups sifted flour

Soften yeast in lukewarm water. Scald milk. Add butter, sugar, and salt. Cool to lukewarm. Add flour to make a thick batter. Add yeast, eggs, and lemon rind. Beat well. Add enough more flour to make a soft dough. Turn out on lightly floured board and knead until satiny. Form into a ball, place in greased bowl, cover and let rise until doubled in bulk. Punch down. Shape into rolls or coffee cakes. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes for rolls. Makes two 12-inch tea rings, or two 9-inch coffee cakes, or about three dozen rolls.

HONEY TWIST

1/2 recipe for sweet yeast dough
1/2 cup butter
2-3 cup confectioners' sugar
1 egg white
2 tbsps. honey, warmed
When yeast dough is light, form into a long roll about 1 inch in diameter. Coil the roll loosely into a greased, deep 9-inch layer pan, beginning at the outside edge and covering the bottom. Cream together butter, sugar, egg white and honey, and brush over the dough. Let rise until doubled in bulk and bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes one nine-inch twist.

STREUSEL COFFEE CAKE

1/2 recipe for sweet yeast dough
2 tbsps. butter

2 tbsps. sugar
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cup dry bread crumbs
1 tsp. cinnamon
2 tbsps. milk

When sweet yeast dough is light, pat out in greased cake pan. Cream butter and sugar together, add flour, crumbs and cinnamon, and mix to consistency of coarse crumbs. Brush yeast dough with milk, and sprinkle flour mixture on top. Let rise until doubled in bulk. Bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) 25 to 30 minutes. Makes one 9-inch coffee cake.

SUGAR ROLLS

When 1/2 recipe for sweet yeast dough is light, divide into small round portions. Let rise 10 minutes. Roll out very thin (1/16 inch) on sugar and cinnamon. Roll up like tiny individual jelly rolls. Let rise on greased baking sheet until doubled in bulk, and bake in moderate oven (375 deg. F.) about 20 minutes. Makes about 1 1/2 dozen rolls.

Birthday Horoscope

By FRANCES DRAKE

For Tuesday, April 16

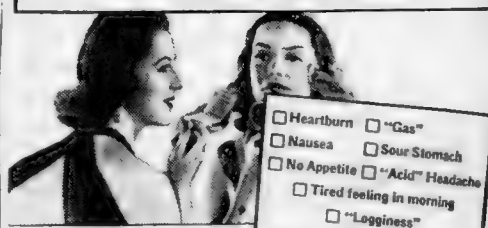

IF TUESDAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY—If true to your innate characteristics, you of this birthday are a live wire—ever on the alert; ingratiating in smile and personality; sensitive and more talented than one at first suspects. You may not be too amenable about taking orders, but you will give them and be expecting having them carried out. You are very receptive to higher education and should aim always at improving your position. Spiritual culture and self-control needed.

LUCKY NUMBER—Today's lucky number is 78

LUCKY COLOR—Today's lucky color is navy blue.

Send 15 cents and large self-addressed stamped envelope to Frances Drake, Boston American, Box 1123, Boston, for an individual horoscope, personal guide and lucky calendar for the first six months of 1936, giving the day and month you were born.

Don't Put Off "ALKALIZING" when you have these signs of ACID INDIGESTION

- ☐ Heartburn ☐ "Gas"
- ☐ Nausea ☐ Sour Stomach
- ☐ No Appetite ☐ "Acid" Headache
- ☐ Tired feeling in morning
- ☐ "Lugginess"

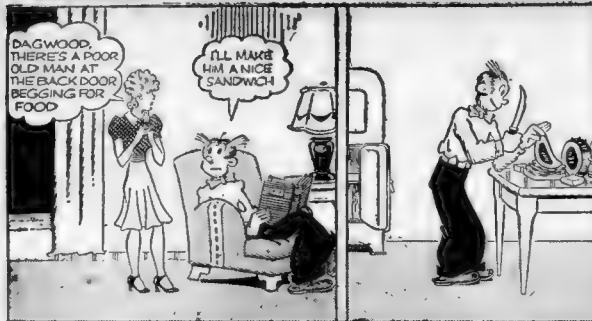

CHECK THESE SYMPTOMS—
and if you suspect excess stomach Acids, take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. If trouble persists, See Your Doctor.

Today it's so easy to "alkalize" excess acids anywhere you are. Now when distress comes at home, all you do is take 2 tablespoonsful of liquid Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. When you are out with others, simply slip 2 Phillips' Tablets in your mouth like you would candy mints. That's all you do to feel wonderful.

Either form of Phillips' works the same way—very quickly. You can't beat it for welcome fast relief from after-eating distress. Almost at once you feel "gas", nausea, that "lumpy" feeling from hyper-acidity begin to ease. "Acid" headaches, "acid breath" are corrected right at the source.

It's a wonderful way to free yourself from distress and embarrassment. And many doctors endorse it. So try it. Be sure when you buy to ask for "Phillips'" to insure getting the genuine fast-acting Phillips' article. Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—either in liquid or tablet form.

ROOKIE LINIMENT

A Complete Short Story
Daily on This Page

By WILLIAM H. McKEE

"C'MON KID, buck up," said Trainer Bill Drake, rubbing Monte's pitching arm. "This liniment is gonna do the trick. Tomorrow, if Mac puts you in, you'll blaze them over the plate."

"Quit kidding, Bill," said the despondent 21-year-old rookie. "I'll take more than liniment to do that."

"You think so? Well, I've been a trainer for a good many years and I ought to know. This stuff is special. It'll work wonders."

Monte smiled half-heartedly, yet he hoped.

On the bench in the long, narrow dugout, Monte Parson extended his lean frame to its full 6 feet 3 inches. His teammates were anxiously watching the first home game of the season. They were ailing and happy. The way he had always pictured he would be when he became a big leaguer.

Unconsciously he rubbed his arm and his thoughts reverted to yesterday's prediction by Drake. It was ridiculous to believe liniment or anything else could restore last season's aches. Something just happened and strangely enough there was no pain in the arm.

Monte was dejected. He had been miserable ever since pitching the first ball at spring training, six weeks ago.

During today's opening day ceremony he was the only dismal figure. All the joys of opening day he had anticipated so long were not realized. The parade of the teams before a crowd of 25,000 cheering, ardent fans left him unimpressed. As he stood before the huge flagpole in right field and watched the league pennant and World Series Championship banner raised, the spine-tingling thrill of knowing he was a member of the team which won these honors last year, was missing.

Only when the first official ball was thrown did he brighten a bit. The short, stocky, dark-complexioned Mayor had removed his wide-brimmed black felt hat, and, surrounded by news photographers, tossed a fairly accurate ball, to the accompaniment of clicking shutters.

"That, Mr. Mayor," smiled Monte to himself. "I probably more pitching than I'll do this season."

In the Interstate League last year Monte did a good job—won 15 and lost six. If his fast ball had been better he would have won more. It had plenty of speed but lacked control. However, on occasion, he used it to advantage.

He found that the better you fell sprawling to the ground to avoid being hit by a wild ball, frequently missed the next pitch. Monte capitalized on this nervous reaction when he was in a tight spot. He was in just such a spot the day John McGrane's scout saw him.

The game was in the big. Monte was on the mound in the eighth inning with a three-to-one lead. Then it happened. The first batter lined out a clean single. A grounder to short was fumbled and two men were on. The next man clouted a prodigious fly to deep center field and as it was caught both base runners advanced.

Parson made a quick summation of the inning as Brute Barlow, the opposition's most powerful hitter, stepped into the batter's box. One out, men on second and third bases, and if Brute tagged one, the game was over—for Monte. Last time up Barlow waited for what he wanted and laced out a two-bagger. This time Monte wasn't going to satisfy him.

The Principal Character In "Rookie Liniment"

MONTE PARSON, a rookie twirler who can't figure what is wrong with his flippers since he has been boosted into big league company, but he finds a trainer who knows the answer.

The wildly-thrown ball sped at Barrow's mid-section. He jumped and sprawled to the ground.

The young pitcher could have deliberately walked Barlow, loading the bases, and played the next batter to hit into a double play. He chose a harder course—to strike him out.

With the count at two and two, Monte became a little anxious. Brute was "fading him" and had fouled the last ball into the stands. The catcher walked to the mound for a consultation. Shaking his head in apparent disagreement, he returned to the plate. Monte glanced at the base runners and then put his whole body behind the pitch.

The wildly-thrown ball sped at Barlow's mid-section. He jumped and sprawled to the ground. Forewarned, the catcher snatched the ball preventing the runner from advancing. Brute was in a rage as he dusted himself off and regained his bat. In the same breath he cursed Monte, he begged.

"Put one over. Just one and I'll slam it out of the park."

Red-faced, mad, with bat quivering, he impatiently awaited the next pitch. This was the psychological effect Parson wanted. He tossed the ball. It was tantalizingly slow. Brute, overanxious, stepped in for it swinging.

"Strike three," called the umpire. The next batter popped to the infield.

Seated in the stands the scout saw and liked the young pitcher's performance. Good pitching and brain work are requirements for big league moundmen. Monte was signed, up. He pinched himself, then, unable to believe his good fortune, but he wasn't pinching himself now. There no longer seemed to be good fortune.

Peering out of the dugout, he watched his teammate Lefty Gilbert on the mound. Lefty, a veteran of five years, who won sixteen to twenty games annually, was performing as usual. Beginning the fifth inning he had a 4 to 0 lead.

"Darn this arm," mumbled the rookie. "If it was in good shape I might have pitched this game."

A far-away look lighted his eyes. "Why, I can hear the announcer saying, 'Batteries for today, Parson... Yeah, 'Parson and...'"

Monte snapped out of it. The deep voice of Manager Big John before had it had so much effect.

As the days went by Monte, always apart from the other hurlers, practiced Mac's advice—control. Spring training over, and the trip north interspersed with exhibition games, found the rookie hard at it. His control had improved, but the speed was lacking. He was annoyed, and then discouraged. Control without speed was no good, and then too, Mac hadn't let him play in any of the games. It was pitching practice, pitching practice, and more pitching practice.

Being isolated had him down too. When he asked teammates why, they answered, "Mac knows what he is doing." When he confessed, dejectedly, that with the loss of speed he felt that he wasn't making the grade, they tried to bolster him up pointing out his better control would be followed by speed, but only after long practice. So he kept at it and now he was in the bull pen warming up to relieve on opening day. It seemed ridiculous.

"Toss it over, Monte," said the catcher, "and make it slow."

"Make it slow?" Was he ribbing? Was the entire team and manager kidding him?

Parson handled the ball gingerly and then carelessly flicked it. Instead of following the usual slow arc, it sped straight to the catcher's midsection and resounded loudly as it struck the mitt. An optical illusion? Monte tried another toss, and another. Each time the leisurely thrown ball rifled accurately to the catcher. He brightened. The liniment? That was it! It did the trick.

Flashing a wide grin, he threw his entire delivery. The curves broke fast and sharp. The drop fell like a brick. The slow ball was interminably suspended, but the source of all anxiety and worry—the fast ball. He wound up and let fly. Crack! Waist-high, it plunged deep into the catcher's glove, stinging his hand. Again Monte did it. His name. Each time it blazed to its mark.

The old speed had returned and in addition he had the new-found control. The rookie was jubilant as he jogged to the dugout at Mac's signal. It was with difficulty he restrained himself from aprinting.

"Mac," Parson was smiling happily as he rapid-fired, "my arm's all right. I've got the old speed and probably more. My delivery is perfect. It must have been..."

"All right, kid. Save it for later. Now go in there and show us."

The rookie beamed as he walked to the mound. His name being broadcast over the public address system, he was smiling and confident as he scanned the thousands of faces in the stands. The telephone lens and news cameras focused on him caused him no discomfort.

It was a happy rookie who tossed his first ball in competitive big league play, and a successful veteran of an opening day game who left the mound. Monte didn't cause a sensation, but he was good. At no time was he wild.

Parson's teammates swarmed around him. Congratulations were in order. His back was heartily slapped and his hand energetically shaken. Gilbert was pumping the kid's hand when Mac smilingly said, "Go easy, kid, we don't want him to lose his speed again!" The group broke into laughter. Monte was the exception.

"Oh, Mac," said the puzzled rookie, "speaking of my arm, Drake did me the world of good applying that special liniment."

"Special liniment?" Now Mac was puzzled.

"Yes. He applied it yesterday and that cured my arm."

"Liniment," snorted the manager. Again the group broke into laughter. Gilbert grabbed his sides and rolled on the ground. Drake held his jaws.

As the laughter subsided Mac places his arm on Parson's shoulder.

"Son, in teaching you control I tried a new method. It was probably tough on you to be isolated from the other pitchers, but I had to do it. Had you at any time practiced with them, you would have learned the secret. You were using a different type of ball."

Monte put his whole body behind the pitch.

Monte's eyes squinted and brow furrowed.

"I had to reduce your speed," continued the manager, smiling, "so you could gain control. I did that by having you do all your pitching with a heavy ball. The center of the ball was lead instead of the regulation cork."

"Well, I'll be —," laughed Parson. "No wonder it felt like a shotput. It was—a miniature shotput."

THE END.

Hardy Elders; Nature's Prank; Sad Sonja, Etc.

EITHER OUR ELDER BREED OF ATHLETES is growing harder or the younger breed is growing softer. For here, barring a cold day, is Lefty Grove, 40, silvery of hair and lean as a lead pencil, pitching the Red Sox opener at Washington. Here is Clarence DeMar, rising 52, patriarchal and looking like the paintings of those hollow-cheeked, early Christian martyrs, shoeing himself for Friday's marathon. And there, from Alberta, Canada, comes a telegraphic shout from Eddie Shore, who is still hockey's hardware man at 38, and who says, "No truth in my retirement! Positively will play for N. Y. Americans and Springfield next winter."

The combined age of this trio is close to 130! Each has led a simple life, but the recipe for their longevity was given by Connie Mack when the Old Testament character of baseball, now 76, rose before a Philadelphia Fathers-and-Sons group, and said, "A man is no older than his enthusiasm! As long as he keeps his original, juvenile interest in a game and doesn't come to regard it as a bothersome chore, he'll keep going. For, in sport, a man's enthusiasm often fails before his physical equipment, slowing down the corporeal engine for lack of spiritual steam."

Mother Nature's Puzzling Prank

I HAVE ALWAYS REGARDED THE MARATHON runners, like DeMar, as a puzzling prank of Mother Nature. Because anybody who would set out deliberately to gallop 26 miles over concrete highways and dirt roads with nothing more than a 50-to-1 shot that he might win a silver non-bon-dish or a plated cocktail shaker, is an intellectual idiot. If not a downright mental freak. Clarence says he wants to "win one more and retire," to that end having shuffled off 15 to 20 miles a day for the last two months, merely teasers to him.

At 52 some men begin sitting around the kitchen range in their stocking feet, petting the family cat, and telling the wife he sees where Mrs. Doody has hauled Patsy up for non-support again. But not Clarence! For 30 years he has been plodding around the countryside, suffering stomach cramps, skinned feet, muscle aches. "It's my game!" he said today while buying a pair of new road shoes, being fitted from the shelf-stocks and wearing the filmy footgear out of the shop.

Yankee Luck May Have Turned

NOT THAT I WISH TO HOWL CALAMITY at the New York Yankees. But Lady Luck, the fickle jade with the April moods, has been generous to the Yanks in late years. Until Lou Gehrig contracted paralysis last summer, injuries and illness have been rare. Other clubs have been cursed with sprains, contusions and ailments. But the Yankees have gone curiously free.

Now the thing which Joe McCarthy most dreaded may have happened—a painful sprain to Joe DiMaggio's chronic knee, the creaky hinge which prompted his frequent league moves to report "bad risk" when DiMagg was a Coast minor leaguer. Add to that Jake Powell's brain concussion, a forearm bruise to Bill Dickey, an inflamed shoulder ligament to Lefty Gomez.

One recalls that Bob Quinn remarked recently, "Baseball players are most perishable commodity in any business." Perhaps the all-time example is Dizzy Dean, for whom the Cubs paid the Cardinals $185,000 and haven't yet realized anything but a giant headache.

Mr. Marshall's Spite Fence

A STRANGE BLEND OF TRUTH and un-Christian spite has blocked Boston from having another professional football team next fall to replace the Redskins, which Mr. George P. Marshall whisked out of our city in 1936 as punishment to the local burghers who refused to buy tickets for his contests. You may recall Mr. Marshall as the Washington, D. C., washerman and social hyacinth who tried to coerce the customers with threats.

The National Pro Football League, of which Mr. M. is a political force, has turned down the application of a local syndicate to buy the franchise which the Redskins vacated. This incensed Mr. M., who snorts sulphur fumes at the mere mention of Boston. So as trustee of the League he has vetoed the bid, calling us a "horse crazy town" whose "sporting heritage has passed through the pari-mutuel window."

Mr. Marshall is impelled by bitterness at the failure of his investment here, but it is possible, too, that he speaks with the voice of angels. Because athletic industry hereabouts has, as he says, failed to match the general march of recovery in other commercial lines. There are some exceptions like professional hockey, and the winter sport trades, which flourish at a time when the neighboring horse and dog plants are boarded up for the season and the gambling locus have moved to the tropical south. And there were the Red Sox of last summer, which enjoy a moderate success. But college football took a deplorable whacking with its payloads falling below depression bottoms. And boxing has dwindled from its once robust self, while wrestling is limping alone.

MISS SONJA HENIE, THE WORLD'S MOST eligible spinster and a golden nugget from the crown of her coppery curls to the tip of her suede toes, is distraught. By her industry, some happy accidents and shrewd promotion, Miss Henie has earned nearly a million dollars from ice carnivals, movies, radio and endorsements. The U. S. government skimmed a share of this, but the bulk of the rest Sonja tucked away in Norwegian banks, in the theory that Scandinavia's century-long freedom from war and social unrest made it the safest repository for funds. Today she is wondering: (1) has been seized by the Nazis and every movable thing of value is said to be commandeered. Sonja is sad!

Governor Hurls First Ball At Bee Hive

By BILL GRIMES

"Batter up!" "Play ball." After Umpire-in-Chief Bill Klem has issued those orders this afternoon at National League Field, Charlie Gilbert, son of Larry Gilbert, a former Boston baseball idol, will step into the batter's box. "Sailor" Bill Poseidel will take his wind-up and unload and the Bees and Brooklyn Dodgers will have officially opened the 1940 National League season.

The Bees and the Dodgers are scheduled to go into action at 3 p. m., but for an hour prior to game time, there'll be the usual ceremonies and fanfare that protocols all baseball opening games.

2 GOVERNORS TO SEE GAME

Pres. Bob Quinn invited all the New England governors to be his guests this afternoon, but with the exceptions of Leverett Saltonstall, chief executive of the Bay State, and Francis Parnell Murphy of New Hampshire urgent state business made it impractical for them to attend.

Among the state and city dignitaries, who will be present, will be Mayor Maurice J. Tobin, Police Commissioner Joseph E. Timilty, Fire Commissioner William Arthur Reilly, Traffic Commissioner William Hickey, Building Commissioner William J. Mooney, Park Commissioner William P. Long, Atty.-Gen. Paul A. Dever, State Treasurer William F. Hurley, Dist. Atty. William J. Foley, ex-Gov. Charles F. Hurley, and former Governor Joseph F. Ely, James M. Curley and Frank G. Allen, former Mayors John F. GROVE HURLS FOR SOX IN WASHINGTON BOW

WASHINGTON, April 16—It may be this year, and it may be never, as far as pennants go, but Joe Cronin's Red Sox were in a "this year" mood as they prepared to open the American League season this afternoon against Bucky Harris' Washington Senators.

President Roosevelt was expected to toss out the first ball, weather and war willing, while Ol' Robert Moses Grove was to take another brand new ball a moment later and start his 16th season of chucking in the major league. The weatherman predicted showers for this afternoon. Before that forecast, Owner Clark Griffith said he expected a full house—31,000 fans—to watch Vice-President Garner lead the flag-raising. "Cep-mones in the centerfield and the President to start the game."

LEONARD FOR NATS

Ol' Moses' version was to be Emil "Dutch" Leonard, knuckle baller of parts, who won 20 games for the lowly Senators last year.

It looked like a pitching duel of pre-World War days, for both pitchers are in top form.

Grove, in his 41st year, pitched four innings against the Cincinnati Reds at Durham a week ago last Sunday and has been resting since. The Lion of Lonaconing allowed only one hit that windy afternoon,

Magnates Happy As Sun Appears; 50,000 at Detroit

By the Associated Press

With threatened showers in several cities holding off hour after hour and the sun shining brightly at three points, prospects for a full program of eight opening day games today had big league magnates happier than they had been for weeks.

Chicago, Detroit and St. Louis all reported a welcome sun, with only the faintest possibility of showers. Fans flocked to Briggs stadium in Detroit so early that officials predicted a crowd of 50,000 would watch the Tigers and St. Louis Browns.

The sky was cloudy in Cincinnati, Philadelphia, Washington and New York, but in no case was there an immediate threat of rain. The forecast at Boston called for occasional rains during the afternoon, but the weather was warmer. At Cincinnati the temperature had risen to 60-65 degrees. The schedule called for these eight openers:

NATIONAL LEAGUE
Chicago at Cincinnati.
Pittsburgh at St. Louis.
Philadelphia at New York.
Brooklyn at Boston.

AMERICAN LEAGUE
New York at Philadelphia.
Boston at Washington.
Cleveland at Chicago.
St. Louis at Detroit.

In each case the games were listed as the first of a three-game series, and any interference in the mid-lifting today would merely postpone the ceremonies until tomorrow, with the cast and scenery unchanged. If all eight games escaped trouble today upward of 150,000 fans were expected to be present to give their favorites a proper send-off.

Naturally the debut of last year's champions was the chief spectacle in each league. The four times American League and World Champion New York Yankees went to Philadelphia without Joe DiMaggio and handicapped by other injuries. It was the fourth time in five years the great outfielder had been absent from an opening, so the fact that he was in New York nursing a twisted knee could hardly be considered vital.

However, Red Ruffing was hit by a batted ball in practice yesterday, making his start also doubtful; Joe Gordon has been out of the lineup for two weeks with a charley horse, and Reserve Outfielder Jake Powell is convalescing from a brain concussion.

PEARSON MAY GET CALL
Manager Joe McCarthy planned to use Monte Pearson if Ruffing was unable to play today and Connie Mack countered with Lefty Chubbey Dean.

At Cincinnati the Cincinnati Reds were ready to start the defense of their National League title in a game with the Chicago Cubs that was sure of a capacity crowd of approximately 35,000. Reserved seat tickets have all been sold for months, although the Reds have lost every opening game in the last eight years.

Two of the finest hurlers in the senior circuit, Paul Derringer of the Reds and Bill Lee of the Cubs were the mound choices.

40,000 AT DETROIT
The biggest turnout of the afternoon was expected in Detroit, where Tiger officials prepared to handle a throng of 40,000 persons.

The other American League tussle was to serve as young Bob Feller's springboard to a big year. The Chicago White Sox relied on Ed Smith, a southpaw, to stop the Indians.

St. Louis, but of much abuse about the poor attendance at its baseball games during the season, has had the biggest opening day sale in history for the Cardinals debut against the pirates.

SALTONSTALL TO TAKE MOUND

Gov. Saltonstall is supposed to toss out the first ball but this being an election year, the "pols" may take over and attempt to play an inning or two before relinquishing the field to the Bees and Dodgers.

After their victory over the Red Sox, which gave them the Intracity title, the Bees are fit both mentally and physically for the Dodgers.

LOPEZ RETURNS

Bill Posedel, who hurled for the Daftness Boys from Flatbush, until he came here a year ago, will be on the hilltop, with Al Lopez behind the bat. Lopez splintered the bone at the very end of the third finger on his right hand a week ago yesterday down at Greenville, S. C. He will wear a steel cap to protect the injured member this afternoon and predicts that he will not have any trouble throwing.

Manager Casey Stengel will have Buddy Hassett at first, Sibby Sisti at the keystone sack, Tony Cuccinello at the hot corner and Eddie Miller, his sensational infielder, at short.

During the spring training season, Manager Stengel tried many infield combinations and finally came to the conclusion that the one he will start this afternoon is tops by a wide margin.

HASSETT AT PEAK

Hassett, who has been on the injured list for weeks, is now in the "pink" and is hitting in mid-season form. In fact, Buddy is the most consistent batter with the possible exception of Cuccinello, the Bees have on the roster.

Sisti has been a trifle jittery this spring but he'll settle down and live up to predictions.

CUCCINELLO AT THIRD

Cuccinello and Miller will handle the right side of the Bees' infield as it has not been cared for in years. Cuccinello took to playing third like a duck takes to water, while Miller is better right now than he was at anytime last season.

The Bees will have two rookies, Chet Ross and Bob Loane, in the outfield. They've both had some major league experience but not enough to have won their spurs. Ross is particularly anxious to get a shot at the Dodgers for the two Brooklyn games were the only tests that he failed to pass in the South. Bob Loane got a hit off Whitlow Wyatt, who'll be on the mound for the Dodgers this afternoon, and another off Steve Rachunok, who did the relief work in the Brooklyn game at Clearwater.

Max West will be in right and O'Case predicts that "Slapsie" will thump his way into the headlines on many occasions this season. Maxie is a most improved ball player, defensively as well as offensively.

The Dodgers will show four new faces this afternoon. "Skipper" Reese, who was supposed to have been on his way to the Red Sox, will be at short, Joe Vosmik, the former Croninman, in left; Charlie Gilbert, up from the Southern Association, in center, and Roy Cullenbine, who was made a free agent by Judge Landis, and collected a large bonus for signing a Brooklyn contract, will be in the sunfield.

The Bees and Dodgers will tangle again tomorrow afternoon at National League Field and then on Thursday afternoon, the Stangeles will depart for the Quaker City, where they'll meet the Phillies in a three-game series at Shibe Park.

HINGHAM YOUTH LANDS PRIZE FISH

The red flannels and the earmuffs are back in the closet today. And many of the opening-of-the-season anglers hereabouts haven't much to show for their trout stream pioneering except a bad case of the sniffles and a good excuse for a medicinal nip.

One stream that repaid fishermen sufficiently blessed with fortitude and perseverance was the Weir river at Hingham.

Ten-year-old Freddy Botting of Leavitt st., Hingham, took a 15 1/2-inch brook trout from the river at 6 p. m., after being out since dawn.

The fish weighed a pound and three-quarters on the official Hingham Sportsmen's Club scales at Bickford's Hardware Store. It was prize-winning trout of the day in the club's annual contest.

Harrison "Ace" Loud, veteran Hingham outdoorsman, took four good trout from a boat on the Weir river, but his best fish was an even 15 inches, not quite big enough to meet young Freddy Botting's challenge.

Carl Rurr of the Hingham Sportsmen's Club conducted a general survey of streams in the Hingham area. He reported most brooks so far over their banks they couldn't be waded. Stream fishing generally within commuting distance of Boston, was disappointing, according to a small army of disgruntled experimenters.

The breaks were better for the very considerable number of anglers, masculine and feminine, who chose to try their luck on state ponds or other recently stocked waters.

Yet even pond fishing had its drawbacks, as a young woman customer reported to Cliff Farrand at Etna's.

"I stepped in a hole and fell full length in the water," she admitted.

"But, no. I didn't catch my death of cold. I had a complete change of clothes in the auto. And even a towel for a rubdown behind the ear," she drew curtains. "I'm one of the people who always gets wet on a fishing trip. So I go prepared to make the best of it."

George Newton of Rosindale and his brother, Joe, are thumbing record books today to prove their right to the longest rainbow brook trout in these parts. They think that they pulled in the king of that class at Ford's brook, Middleborough. It measured 38 1/2 inches and scaled two pounds.

The Newton brothers also were among the lucky anglers who reeled in their quota in a very short time. They are singing the praises of Barrett's pond in the Styles Standish Reservation, just outside of Plymouth.

George Proctor, the game warden-columnist of Wilton, N.

H., said the icicles on the eaves yesterday morning, failed to keep anglers of his section of the state either at home or at work.

They turned out in force, with at least a dozen Massachusetts autos parked near favorite brooks, indicating that out-of-staters are finding New Hampshire licenses a good investment.

Latest word from Maine is that lakes even as far south as Sebago are still frozen hard and solid. Warden Supervisor Verene Black said it didn't look as if Sebago would be open before April 25, at best.

The Bangor Salmon Pool and the pool below Wyman dam have not been productive as yet. Brook fishing in "scattered instances" has been fair to middlin', according to Maine State Press Agent Dick Reed.

And speaking of Maine, don't neglect to put the bee on your favorite sporting goods dealer for a copy of the Bangor & Aroostook Railroad's new 1940 Maine Woods booklet.

It's a honey, with plenty of lake and forest photos to make your heart ache for vacation time.

Whoever got the booklet out did a swell job of adding white-out lined sketches of bounding deer and other action figures to some of the camera landscapes.

The "ghost" figures don't give a fake look to the pictures, but just stimulate your imagination enough to make the photographed bog or stream or mountain come suddenly to life.

Lake and pond fishing, generally, was least affected by the weather's wintry hangover.

The salmon were biting briskly for a while on Long Pond, Plymouth. And among successful rod and reel men there were Jack Anderson and Eddie Glennon of New Bedford and Elmer Raymond of Plymouth.

Their best fish was a scum and a half pound sockdolager, but they took half a dozen more that were plenty respectable.

NARRAGANSETT PARK will pry the lid off the New England racing season with a banner eight race program tomorrow afternoon.

Even the opening of the local league baseball season today with the Bees and Dodgers as opponents has not been able to take away any of the glamour and color from the launching of the turf season.

Racing is going to have the biggest season it has ever experienced. This was indicated in Florida and in Maryland, and more recently by the large crowd and big handle at the Jamaica opening in New York.

Narragansett gets a break in staging its meeting when the betting public has fresh money. Racegoers have been building up their financial reserves in recent months and are once more prepared to take a free handed try at the mutual machines.

The track having the first meeting always benefits from this conditions. Later in the season some of the carefree bettors run a bit short of cash.

In the Spring, everything usually looks bright. That is the time of the season when the missus puts aside her party dress and cleans the house from attic to cellar, when the bread winner of the household plants a few tulips and pretties up the front lawn, when the youngsters doll up in their new clothes, when baseball managers and magnates talk about winning a pennant, when every baseball rookie thinks he is a potential Babe Ruth or Joe DiMaggio, and when those persons who like to bet on the races believe they have finally come up with a winning system.

It is well that folks feel that way in the Spring for usually before December arrives with its chill winds and snow they have had numerous disappointments.

THE RETURN of Dave Wilson to New England is always a sign of Spring as well as the fact that a racing season is about to open.

I saw the king of handicappers leaning against the rail at Narragansett Park watching the thoroughbreds go through brisk workouts.

"There should be some spirited racing at tomorrow's opening," said Dave. "Bob Shelley has received good entries, and there should be many a nose finish."

Dave, as usual, will handicap the races exclusively for the Boston American-Sunday Advertiser. Wilson's code horses will appear in the Race Special edition of the Boston American. "Dave Wilson's Winners," on sale at all newsstands, has the key to the code. "Dave Wilson's Winners" will also be on sale at Narragansett Park.

Wilson was born in the horse country of Maryland. As a boy, he perched on the rail at the small private tracks. He visited the breeding farms, and got to know the history of the great horses.

When Dave talks about Man O' War, War Admiral, Discovery, Display or some other famous thoroughbred, there is a tone of affection in his voice. Wilson likes the horse for himself, and does not associate him with highly commercialized race tracks or with heartless mutual machines. Until one can feel like Dave does towards the thoroughbred, he is not a real horse lover.

In the early days of New England racing, there were thousands of people who could recognize the number on the cheap mutual ticket they held in their hand. They did not appreciate the magnificent parade of highly conditioned thoroughbreds to the post. They failed to see the flashing colors in the sun, the expressions of determination and hope on the faces of the courageous little human mites who were to guide the destinies of the great thoroughbreds, the eagerness of the officials, the light in the eyes of the stable sweep as they perched along the rail or huddled in the infield to watch the race.

Times, fortunately, have changed. As people have learned more about racing they have gained a higher appreciation of the thoroughbreds; and of the wealthy men who have devoted their time and money to building up the sport of kings.

THERE WILL be society leaders, bankers, rich industrialists and other people of wealth at the clubhouse at Narragansett. Important public officials and turf leaders will visit the pent house to visit with Judge James E. Dooley, head of Narragansett Park, while in the grandstand boxes and stands will be other people of prominence.

issued exactly no passes and in all three only 37 balls in four innings. A year ago he was wary about his arm, which went dead on him in '38, but this year he has been throwing as of yore with no ill effects. He needs only 14 more victories to reach the 300 mark and as he said recently, "That ought to be a breeze with this ball club."

Behind him today was to be practically the same boys who finished second to the Yankees a year ago. The only exception was in the outfield, where Dom DiMaggio, younger brother of Joe, was in right. Dom has taken the place of Joe Vosmik, now with Brooklyn. Washington, on the other hand, is introducing several new men. Gerry Walker, former Detroit and Chicago problem child, is in left field and hitting better than he ever did before, which is hard enough to suit the most blasé.

OUTSIDER BUDDY MYER
At short, Jim Fofahl is Bucky Harris' reliable. Fofahl is from Minneapolis, where he was rated highly.

He is supposed to have a weak arm but Harris is so satisfied with him he has shifted Shortstop Cecil Travis to third, and Third Baseman Buddy Lewis to the outfield.

'GANSETT PREPARED TO START TOMORROW

PAWTUCKET, R. I., April 16—An army of workmen were putting the finishing touches to Narragansett Park today in preparation for the opening of the 28-day spring meeting tomorrow.

Painters, carpenters, electricians and the many other tradesmen necessary for the maintenance of a huge modern race track under the pari-mutuels system of betting were hustling against time to make everything in ship-shape order for New England's greeting the thoroughbreds of turfdom.

1500 SEEK JOBS

Another army of more than 1500 job seekers were keeping up a constant stream to Mort Mahony's pari-mutuels department.

'Gansett's official family assembled again for a final day get-together and the stewards checked the long list of jockeys' licenses. The Puett gate and electric eye camera were given their final tests and the miles of wiring that carry the current to operate the mutual machines and the big "tote" board received a checkup.

'Gansett's stables are filled with horses, most of them fit and ready to run. There are horses that wintered in this section and which have been legged up on indoor tracks. There are horses that have been racing in Florida, Louisiana, Arkansas, California, Maryland and far off Cuba.

TAYLOR RIDES HERE

There are many new stables at 'Gansett this year and several large establishments have returned after a couple of years' absence.

The leading jockey of the country, Walter Lee Taylor, is here for the meet and a host of other good riders have already applied for their licenses.

The leading trainer of the country, Danny Womeldorf, is here also with the largest stable on the grounds, that of Mrs. Emil Denmark.

Bowling Winners Receive Prizes Next Saturday

All champions and runner-ups, except for the men's open singles, in the American-Record-Advertiser Fifth Annual Diamond Medal Bowling championships which conclude at the Huntington Club, Saturday, will be officially published in the Boston American Thursday.

The prize winners will meet at the Huntington Club next Saturday night at 8 o'clock to receive their prizes. After the awards, the 22 finalists in the men's open singles will stage a ten-strike roll-off for big cash purses.

Nazi Guns on Trondheim—Glimpsed from attacking German gunboat, the key port of Trondheim, on the western coast of Norway, looms in the distance. This photo was taken previous to the Nazi occupation of that port. Since, several naval and air battles have taken place there ... as the Allied forces seek to regain control of the strategic point.
